BARTH'S ELECTION AS SCHOOL BOARD HEAD UNANIMOUS

Factions Come to Agreement and Myrt A. Rollins Accepts Vice Presidency as Compromise.

TO RETAIN BUILDING AT 9TH AND LOCUST

Lot Purchased at Grand and Vandeventer Place for $106,000 in 1924 for Sale at $168,750.

Emil J. Barth, a member of the Board of Education since 1925, became its president last night when the board reached a unanimous agreement in place of the chairman of votes among four candidates that occurred five weeks ago.

Barth is assistant superintendent here for the Prudential Insurance Co., and resides at 5542 Amberger avenue. He was elected as president ending next October but his term as a member will expire next April. He is expected to seek re-election to the board.

The president has no policy-making authority beyond that of other members of the board, but does choose the personnel of board committees. Barth's appointments probably will be made soon.

Myrt A. Rollins, a lawyer, who has been on the board about eight years, was made vice president, succeeding Barth in that office. Rollins had sought the presidency, but was content to take the lower position with the prospect of promotion next year, after the death of Arthur A. Blumeyer in the chair. Blumeyer had two terms, having been re-elected last year.

Spirit of Harmony.

The members, who were in a jovial mood last night, took occasion to comment on the spirit of harmony that prevailed among themselves, in marked contrast to the attitude a year ago. Although last week Rollins and Barth each counted on votes of about half the board for the presidency, it was decided by interchange of views to give the honor to Barth. Barth was confirmed informally when the board dined at Hotel Statler last night. Rollins, like Barth, was elected unanimously, and neither had an opponent.

Mrs. Elias Michael nominated Barth, praising him for having at first declined to run in the fear that other members would dictate to him in picking committees. Ben Weidman nominated Rollins.

Barth omitted the traditional speech in taking the chair, simply thanking his colleagues for the honor. Previously Blumeyer had commented on the harmony that had sprung up and the strenuous work the board had done during his incumbency, including the selection of three major executives and the development of the educational system. He cautioned the board to watch its finances, so that it could continue to pay for improvements as income came in, and said there were two special problems ahead—high school housing and the intermediate school program.

Rollins and Richard Murphy called on Barth to obtain final reports from the numerous special committees and discharge them, and Barth agreed to take this under consideration.

Not to Sell Building.

The board has decided to drop the idea of disposing of its administrative building, at Ninth and Locust streets, and to lease it to one firm seemingly having been abandoned. It discussed last night some structural changes in the three upper floors in connection with a rearrangement of departmental space. The board has decided to sell a lot fronting 135 feet on Grand boulevard, facing Vandeventer place at 9th and 20th North Grand, which it bought in October, 1924, for $106,000 as a site for a new headquarters. It is asking $1250 a foot, or $168,750, having been advised by real estate men that the value has risen. Some tentative offers have been received.

Members of the board now feel that a downtown location is best for headquarters. The Grand-Plaza Hotel occupies the Grand boulevard lot. Constantine Pallas and James Kassaros, whose lease on the place expires Nov. 30, are to be permitted thereafter to remain as monthly tenants at $250 a month, and the board voted to spend $600 to repair the heating system. On recommendation of Building Commissioner Fritton, the board appropriated $25,000 for repairs to many school playgrounds and school yards, some of which are in such bad condition that they need complete resurfacing. Fritton said the winter was a good time for this work and that it was desirable to provide it now as a contribution to unemployment relief.

Missouri Slain by Wife.

By the Associated Press.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Nov. 19.—Ernest Bigelow, a carpenter, was shot to death by his wife, Myrtle Bigelow, early today as the culmination of a quarrel which started last night. Mrs. Bigelow said she had become tired and nervous from loss of sleep and from continued "nagging" by her husband and fired one shot from a revolver through his heart. They are the parents of six children.

EIGHT PERSONS DROWNED BY FLOOD IN HONOLULU

Twenty Missing; Houses Washed From Foundations by Inundation Caused by Rains.

HONOLULU, Nov. 19.—Danger from the flooded Kalihi valley yesterday drowned eight persons, several cars of livestock and stalled several hundred automobiles of Navy Yard workmen, was passing today. The Waterworks Bureau announced that danger of a break in the dam at the head of Nuuanu Valley had been averted by a slackening of the downpour which flooded the stream. Eight bodies have been found and 23 persons are missing.

A torrential rain caused a flood down the Kalihi Valley into Honolulu from the hills 2000 feet above.

King and Queen streets in this city were blocked with wreckage. Many houses were washed from foundations, one building blocking King street.

Col. James P. Barney of Schofield Barracks, and his sister, Mrs. Julia McCoy, are in the army hospital, suffering from exposure. Their automobile was washed from the road and they clung to a tree until they were rescued.

GRAPE MEN ASK FOR U. S. PROTECTION FROM GANGSTERS

Shippers of Concentrate Make Plea to the Department of Justice.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—A plea from California grape growers and shippers for protection against gangsters levying tribute on their product in several cities has been laid before Assistant Attorney-General John Lord O'Brien.

O'Brien is in charge of anti-trust matters for the Department of Justice. He was asked to act under Federal laws holding it unlawful to interfere with interstate commerce. What steps the department contemplates, if any, remain undisclosed.

The plea for protection was made partly in behalf of Fruit Industries, a California concern making among other products a grape concentrate.

CAMPBELL, MO., BANK CLOSES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMPBELL, Mo., Nov. 19.—The First National Bank of Campbell, organized 20 years ago, was closed today by order of the directors. It is said frozen loans and general business depression and poor conditions were factors in the closing.

The bank was a member of the Federal Reserve System and had capital and surplus of $50,000. It was one of nine banks in the county. One other bank remains in Campbell. The officers are N. M. Rice, president; O. H. Hall, vice president, and T. A. Wood Jr., cashier.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 19.—The State Bank of Naylor, at Naylor in Ripley County, was closed today by its board of directors. The bank had $74,508 in loan, $15,000 capital stock and $44,145 deposits.

Gravels Protest Meeting.

A meeting of the Gravels Improvement District Protest Association will be held at St. Francis de Sales Church, Gravels and Ohio avenues, tomorrow evening. Scorfina Repudiates Identifications

chair waiting for the court and bailiffs to get order in the courtroom.

Of medium height and inclined to stoutness, the Carr street grocer was neatly dressed in a black suit with a white pin stripe, a white shirt, black knit tie and high black shoes. He fingered a brown felt hat uneasily.

Preliminary questions by counsel and the court led up to a motion by the State that an interpreter be used because Scorfina's broken English was almost unintelligible to the jury. Two interpreters were employed, one for the State and one for the defense, and the interrogation of the witness was begun.

To early questions he described himself as a grocer who had sold his store "after this trouble came up." He identified Agrusa and Impastato as the men who extorted money from him and Bommarito and Lombardo as the men whom he had seen continuously for two weeks prior to the kidnapping. The State had hoped to prove that Bommarito and Lombardo were used by the kidnapers to watch his movements.

His refusal to identify the gangsters as his abductors came with stunning suddenness, just when it appeared that he was gaining his composure and was beginning to establish the State's case.

"I went to the races (at the Madison Kennel Club) the night of July 12," he said, replying to questions of the prosecution. "I was with Bommarito and Mantia (friend of Scorfina). We went over the Washington avenue bridge.

"Knocked Out Front Teeth."

"On Broadway in East St. Louis a machine drove up. Some men got out. I saw one of them. One of them struck me with a gun and knocked out my front teeth."

"Who did it?" asked State's Attorney Lindauer.

"I didn't notice," Scorfina replied.

"How many men were in the machine?"

"Five. Four got out."

"Who were two of the four?" Lindauer continued.

Scorfina shook his head, negatively. "I don't know," he replied evasively. "That when they struck me I fell into the machine."

"Whom did you recognize among them?"

"I recognized none of them."

Each Defendant Named.

"Did you recognize Frankie Agrusa?"

"No."

"Impastato?"

"No."

"Bommarito?"

"No."

"Lombardo?"

"No."

"Mantia?"

"No."

Lindauer and his brother, Assistant State's Attorney Curt Lindauer, went to the bench together and asked that the jury be excluded. The jury was ordered from the courtroom.

The Assistant State's Attorney pointed out that Scorfina's testimony was in absolute repudiation of previous statements and declared that as late as noon today Scorfina had said that he had seen Bommarito and Mantia in the kidnapping. Lindauer asked that Court examine the witness so that the State might cross-examine him, and gave the Court all of questions to put to him.

Judge Bernreuter, questioning Scorfina at the instance of the Lindauer, asked:

"You stated a while ago that someone asked you for $500. Who was it?"

"Impastato," he replied.

"On the night of July 12, when you were taken from the machine," the Judge asked, "did you see any of the men present?"

"No," said Scorfina, "because they struck me in the face and on the legs and body and I fell into my machine."

The defense attorneys objected to the further "cross-questioning" of Scorfina, a State's witness, by the State, but the court overruled this. The defense then objected to the presence of a St. Louis plainclothes policeman as Scorfina's guard, implying that the guard was intended to affect the testimony. The court ordered a deputy sheriff to replace the policeman.

Previous Statement Presented.

At this point Curt Lindauer asked permission to give the court the salient points in Scorfina's testimony so that the court might question him more fully. The court granted permission and Lindauer dictated a statement to the court stenographer of the high lights of Scorfina's previous testimony.

This was done so that the court might make the examination-in-chief normally made by the State, a rare practice but one sanctioned by Illinois court procedure. Such a plan formed the State's only opportunity of cross-examining its own witness in the hope of making him return to his original statement.

After Lindauer had dictated his statement an hour's recess was declared to give the stenographer an opportunity to type it.

Scorfina, accompanied by his wife and 17-year-old daughter, Jennie, arrived in Belleville at 8:30 a. m. in the police department's bullet-proof green Cadillac limousine. He was escorted by 14 St. Louis policemen, 11 of them in uniform.

When court convened at 10:05 o'clock defense counsel made an effort to have Scorfina ordered into court to take his seat among the other witnesses. The Court overruled the request. On motion of defense, however, Judge Bernreuter ordered uniformed policemen excluded from the courtroom until called upon to testify. Eleven St. Louis policemen are among State's witnesses.

Morning's Proceedings: State Asked for Death Penalty.

In the forenoon a graphic statement of the evidence the State hoped to produce was given by

State's Attorney Curt Lindauer in an opening statement in which he told the jury the prosecution would demand the death penalty.

He said the State would show that some of the defendants looked prior to the kidnapping and that Impastato and Agrusa had extorted $2000 from him over a period of months preceding the abduction.

"We shall show," he went on, "that at 9 o'clock on the night of the kidnapping, policeman guards on Eads Bridge saw Lombardo and Agrusa pass them at a high rate of speed, that they took the license number and determined the car was owned by Bommarito. We shall also show the car returned 15 minutes later, with Bommarito driving it and alone."

Says Scorfina Was Slugged.

"The State will show that Scorfina was kidnapped at Sixth and Broadway in East St. Louis by five men who stopped a car, crying, 'We are police officers'; that they dragged him from the machine, slugged him and carried him screaming and struggling to another car—that Agrusa and Impastato were two of the five kidnapers."

"Our evidence will show that one man took Scorfina's car and drove it to the Broadway Hotel, where it was found two days later. It will also show that the kidnapers took Scorfina, blindfolded, to a place in East St. Louis where the license plates were changed. Here the man who had taken Scorfina's car away rejoined them."

"The evidence will show that Scorfina was then driven across the Free Bridge, which he recognized by the noise made as the car bumped over the expansion joints in the roadway. We shall show that he was held for 24 hours in St. Louis and that the kidnapers gave him a glass of milk, the only food and drink he got during his captivity."

"We shall show in addition that he was kept at another place for 24 hours and then taken to a farm near Weingarten, Mo. We shall show that, garbed only in under-shirt, he was beaten and tortured, that the undershirt was covered with his blood as he fought the swarms of mosquitoes that attacked him. We shall show also that in East St. Louis the kidnapers took $150 from him and that later they robbed him of $400."

"Our evidence will show that on the third day Scorfina was driven to desperation, that he snatched the bandage from his eyes and cried out, 'Kill me if you want; I'm going to run away.' We shall show that his guard on that occasion was Carl Florio (a Sicilian gangster under indictment but not yet apprehended).

Escape of Scorfina.

"Continuing, we shall show that for six hours Scorfina was kept through swamp water waist deep and through tangled thickets until finally he met farmers who took him to the nearest town. We shall show that when he returned to St. Louis he immediately met Bommarito, Mantia and Lombardo as members of the kidnapping gang."

"We shall show that the first words Mantia said when policemen arrested him in the case were 'Get Alibi Defense Indicted.'"

The thin-haired Mantia stiffened in his chair and flushed angrily.

"Huh," he ejaculated, "that's a damn lie."

He was quieted by defense counsel as Lindauer concluded his statement with the announcement that the State would ask the jury to convict the defendants and assess their punishment at death.

An alibi defense will be relied upon, it developed in the opening statements of Arthur Fitzgerald, attorney for Agrusa and Impastato, and Harold J. Bands, attorney for the other two.

"We shall show that Agrusa was 70-odd miles away at the time of the kidnapping," Fitzgerald told the jury, "and that Impastato was with a close friend of Scorfina and could not possibly have participated in it."

Fitzgerald and Bands stressed the statement that the two groups of defendants were not in any wise associated with each other and that their defenses would be wholly distinct. Bands delivered a brief discourse on the provisions of Missouri and Illinois law which make possible a prosecution for kidnapping either at the point of seizure or at the point of imprisonment.

Defense Remark on Venue.

"This case could have been tried in St. Louis," Bands continued, but State's Attorney Lindauer interrupted him with an objection and asked that he be admonished against making such statements. Judge Bernreuter sustained his objection.

"Such a statement," the Court said, "is irrelevant and highly prejudicial. This case is being tried in Illinois where it has a right to be tried. I don't want you interfering it should be tried on the other side of the river. The jury is instructed to disregard counsel's statement."

To guard against any attempt at Scorfina's life or at a delivery of the defendants, deputies searched every man and woman who entered the court except those known to the officers. A woman deputy at the spectators' door had the duty of questioning and searching women who sought admittance.

Wives, sweethearts and relatives of the defendants had front-row seats which they have occupied daily during the wearying process of selecting a jury. Many friends of the defendants also arrived early to be sure of seats.

The mothers of Lombardo and Mantia waited in front of the jail for a glimpse of their sons as they were led to the courtroom. Mrs. Lombardo carried in her hands a small crucifix. Her eyes were closed and her lips moved in prayer as she waited. She and Mrs. Mantia smiled and nodded to their sons as they passed.

Fourteen St. Louis policemen, 11 of them in uniform, supplemented the St. Clair County deputies in guarding against disorder. Eleven of the St. Louis policemen were there as State's witnesses.

The last block of four jurors was selected yesterday afternoon shortly before 4 o'clock. In the selection of the trial panel 212 men were questioned. Their fees at $5 a day and mileage from their home at 10 cents a mile cost the county $1375, while the fees of the eight jurors already chosen for duty had totaled $325 up to last night.

The first eight jurors were chosen Monday and Tuesday of last week. In the three remaining days and the first day of this week defense and State failed to agree on a single juror.

Members of the jury: Charles Julian, a farmer, Caseyville; Roy Hood, real estate maintenance man, East St. Louis; George Werner, accountant, East St. Louis; Charles Kordy, concrete worker, East St. Louis; Charles Horne, accountant, East St. Louis; John Pfeiffer, truck driver, Belleville; Walter Straub, taxicab driver, Belleville; Conrad Steinheimer, laborer, New Athens; William Bartelmann, farmer, St. Clair Township; William Pfeiffer, stove mender, New Athens; J. F. Walker, coal dealer, East St. Louis; and William Knowles, carpenter, Belleville.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 19.

SOMETIMES our country is charged with giving too much thought to the material things of life. The charge may appear more justified because in ordinary times the rank and file of our people are in such comfortable circumstances, so independent and well able to take care of themselves, that they make no appeal to the humanitarian sentiments. But if any catastrophe arises that is likely to cause real human suffering at home or abroad, our response to the need for relief is generous and instantaneous.

The economic effect of the unemployed can be overestimated. It is the number at work, not the number out of work, that measures our business prosperity. But the need for assisting those not able to find work cannot be overestimated. The real human sympathy of all our people in every station and locality now is being most effectively revealed in the relief that is being provided through private charities and local governments. It demonstrates not only our ample ability to take care of each other, but the existence and power of a deep and abiding community spirit. Our social system is not yet perfected, but it is already the best and safest reliance in time of need that any people ever enjoyed.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

GANDHI'S FORMER ALLY INSISTS ON INDIA'S FREEDOM

ple thought they can suppress the Nationalist movement, and could demoralize the Indian people by a display of force.

"I speak frankly and sincerely," he said. "The time will never come again when any show of physical force is going to cow the Indian people. I have seen with my own eyes officers with police and military faced by thousands of people—children, boys, women and men—who said: 'all right, do your worst. We are prepared to be shot down.' Young boys, girls, old women and old men are taking an active part in the Nationalist movement, going to jail, suffering all kinds of indignities and oppression in their agitation for a responsible Government."

He himself, he said, had been jailed twice.

He then quoted to the delegates a description of the state of affairs in India written by Miss Madeleine Slade, daughter of a British Admiral and known as Mirabai in India. She is a disciple of Gandhi.

He quoted her as saying: "The whole affair is one of the most devious, cold-blooded and unjustifiable in the history of nations."

He also quoted her as saying that Indians had been beaten with sticks on the head, chest and stomach, stripped naked before being beaten and in some cases beaten after they were unconscious.

"This is going on in India at the present moment and this has been going on for more than six months and yet the National movement continues," Dr. Moonjee exclaimed. "The path of what I am saying is that if British officials in India think this movement can be cowed down or submerged by any kind of repression they are mistaken."

He interpreted the National movement as a demand for dominion status.

"I have not come here as a beggar. I want to be as free in my country as an Englishman in England, as a Canadian in Canada, as a New Zealander in New Zealand and as an Australian in Australia. Nothing less than that is going to satisfy me."

Ten-Minute Rule Adopted.

Moonjee was one of five speakers at today's session. The discussion round such great interest that it might have continued for weeks if Premier MacDonald had not taken steps to control it. Tomorrow a 10-minute rule for all speakers will be enforced.

The Maharajah of Patiala, one of the most powerful of the Indian rulers, added his plea for an all-Indian Government.

"I speak for all my brother Indians," he said, "when I say that we all look forward to the birth of a greater India. Whether that will take the form of a United States of India or of a Federal Dominion, we may know more clearly before this conference comes to an end."

Sirdar Sahib Singh, regarded as a moderate in Indian politics, asserted that hesitation and half-hearted measures were bound to lead to great disorder in India.

"We dare not go back," he said, "without taking with us some solution which will satisfy the aspirations of our people."

The immediate business of the Indian delegates, he said, was to obtain the substance of independence, a status of partnership in the British Empire, and a full measure of responsible Government in the autonomous provinces under a responsible central government.

CALDWELL CO. GOT STATE ROAD FUNDS UNDER NEW LAW

Extra Session of Tennessee Legislature Apparently Swept Away Restrictions
on Such Deposits.

$5,701,000 NOW IN THREE CLOSED BANKS

These General and Highway
Funds, Under Old Law,
Would Have Been Kept
Down to $337,500.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 19.—
By virtue of a law passed by the General Assembly of Tennessee of 1929, in extraordinary session, the state has on deposit in three banks whose doors are closed a total of $5,701,612.39 of general and highway funds.

When the extra session convened on Dec. 2, 1929, the law in effect governing the amount of deposits that the state legally could have maintained in these three banks would have restricted this total to $337,500.

A measure which became a law
on Dec. 14, the concluding day of the extra session, apparently has operated to sweep away restrictions which have prevailed for many years and has been used by the state funding board as the authority for its action in placing huge sums in the three banks mentioned and others in the state.

Prior to the extra session of 1929,
the only law relating to bank deposits was Chapter 54 of the Acts of 1913. It provided that deposits of state funds in any bank were limited to 25 per cent of its paid-up capital and that all banks must make bonds with security approved
by the State Treasurer and State Comptroller of double the amount of such deposit. It also placed upon the treasurer, with the approval of the comptroller, the duty of transferring "all amounts in excess of 50 per cent of the bond executed by any depository" to another depository within the limit.

Limit Had Been Exceeded.
The limit set forth above had been exceeded prior to the meeting of the extra session, however, for the quarterly report of the State Treasurer as of Oct. 1, 1929, shows that these three banks had more than $1,500,000 on deposit and that other banks were above the limit. Heavy bond and note issues had been sold in months gone by
and the proceeds of these sales had been apportioned over the State.

But other bond issues had been authorized and additional ones
were approved during the extra session. It was evident to everybody that the limits of Tennessee,
with a 25 per cent of paid-up capital restriction, could not absorb all these millions of dollars. The Treasurer apparently was confronted with keeping large sums in his safe or sending them outside the State.

When Gov. Henry H. Horton called the extra session he included two clauses asking for legislation which had bearing upon the handling of State finances. One provided that the Commissioner of Finance and Taxation be added to the Funding Board, which up until that time consisted of Governor,
Secretary of State, Treasurer and Comptroller, all constitutional officers. The new member is an appointee of the Governor. This law was enacted.

One of New Proposals.
The second proposal was as follows: "An act to authorize the Funding Board of the State of Tennessee to approve the selection by the Commissioner of Highways of depositories of the State highway funds as the same may be drawn from the State Treasury by said Commissioner, to approve bonds on such depositories and fix the rate of interest at not less than 3 per cent."

Tennessee in amounts to be specified by us at the usual rate of 3 per cent per annum interest on daily balances" and, further, that these funds were to be kept on deposit with these banks until "the money is actually needed to pay for complete work for which these obligations are issued and that such withdrawals shall be made pro rata on all banks so designated by us."

This bid was accepted by the Funding Board, although the Treasurer did not sign the minutes. However, when the board met on Jan. 31, it approved distribution of the funds by the Treasurer and the "bonds and depositories" in which he had placed them. The Treasurer signed these minutes.

On Aug. 14, 1930, the law again
cropped up as a basis for action of the Funding Board. At that time the board specifically approved the deposit of $345,000 for a bridge project to be carried on in Jackson County, to be deposited with the Bank of Tennessee, which institution was reported as having given bond for $5,000,000.

"Adjoining" Restriction Removed.
The old highway law had provided that funds for highway projects
must be deposited in authorized banks of the county wherein the work was going on. If no such depository existed in the county, then one in an adjoining county should get the funds. The amendment by Chapter 33 removed the "adjoining" feature.

Two of the closed banks are more or less interwoven with Caldwell & Co., investment bankers,
who have dealt in millions of municipal and other types of bonds.

The first is the Bank of Tennessee, a subsidiary, with a capital of $500,000, with $338,643.52 of general funds and $3,052,086.84 of highway funds when it was taken over by the Superintendent of Banks on Nov. 7.

The second is Holston-Union National Bank of Knoxville, with a capital of $750,000, which closed its doors on Nov. 12, and which had on deposit State general funds totaling $266,380.90 and $1,737-011.29 of highway and bridge money.

The Holston-Union funds were

CALDWELL CO. GOT
STATE ROAD FUNDS
UNDER NEW LAW

secured by personal bonds totaling $4,275,000, signed by officers and directors, with Rogers Caldwell,
who had brought about the then existing organization of the bank,
as well as a signer on all of them.
J. D. Carter, a vice president of Caldwell & Co., was a signer on the $4,000,000 bond. The Bank of Tennessee bonds totaled $6,500,000
and were signed by Rogers Caldwell and other officers and directors of Caldwell & Co.

The Liberty Bank & Trust Co. of Nashville, the third institution, had a capital stock of $100,000, with deposits of $24,771.83 of general funds of the State and $23,775.96
of highway funds. It had no connection with the Caldwell interests.

Attorney-General's Opinion.
With reference to the action of the funding board, when, on Jan.
9, it accepted the syndicate bid,
with the bidding banks' reserving
the right of designating deposi-tories, the Attorney-General, in an opinion which he transmitted to the Treasurer, held that the proceeds of the bond sales could not consistently with the law be immediately placed in banks to be specified by the syndicate. He held it to be the duty of the Treasurer and Comptroller to designate deposi-tories, subject to the approval of the Funding Board.

The law has not been attacked
on the grounds of constitutionality
and been passed upon by the courts. The Treasurer of the State apparently has considered that it applied only to highway funds and not to the monies for other State purposes, for he admitted when the Bank of Tennessee closed that his deposit of general funds was in excess of the legal limit, which would have been $125,000. For the law which imposes upon the Treasurer and the Comptroller to keep deposits of State money within the limit of 25 per cent of the paid-up capital of any bank stands unamended.

The minutes of the Funding
Board, since the extra session,
show authorization by it of deposits of highway funds of $2,000,000 and $345,000 in the Bank of Tennessee,
$2,000,000 in the Holston-Union National Bank and $150,000 in the Liberty Bank & Trust Co.

Figures in Political Events.
Rogers Caldwell, the head of Caldwell & Co., the Bank of Tennessee, and interested in the Holston-Union National Bank, while not active in State politics, has figured in political events prominently. It was through connection with Caldwell that the Luke Lea interests entered into control of the Memphis Commercial Appeal and the Knoxville Journal, both of which have supported the present administration vigorously. Caldwell
& Co. financed Kentucky Rock Asphalt Co., manufacturers of a material largely used in Tennessee highway construction.

Every sort of administration pressure possible was brought to bear Chapter 23. When it came up in the Senate, Speaker Sam H.
Bratton, who was anti-administration, asked Senator Frank Hall if this was the bill "to put all the state's money in the Lea-Caldwell banks" and Hall replied that it was.

A petition for involuntary bankruptcy was filed in United States District Court here today against Caldwell & Co.
The petitioners were Dyer County, Middlefork Drainage District No. 6 of Weakley County, and
R. E. L. Gallimore of Weakley County. The subpoena was made returnable Dec. 9.

It is set out by the petitioners
that they have claims totaling $500 against the company in excess of the security provided.

Declaring that Caldwell & Co.
is "hopelessly insolvent and has been for four months," the petitioners said that in the general
creditors' bill last Thursday the company admitted it was unable to meet its obligations.

Alleges Heavy Indebtedness.
The petition recites "that the indebtedness of the company is stupendous in the aggregate and scattered throughout several states;
that some of its indebtedness is well secured and that some of it is poorly secured, and that some of it is unsecured."

"It is further shown," the petition continues, "that the company
in the management of its affairs
within the past four months has committed many and additional acts of bankruptcy in switching and handling its securities—and in this connection it is shown that said company has associated with it many subsidiary trading corporations and business interests

and, in the conduct of its business
it has been able to and has diverted and switched its assets from itself
to different ones of the subsidiary companies, and by so doing has created many unlawful preferences
and acts of bankruptcy."

A Deputy United States Marshal
served the process on Rogers Caldwell, president of Caldwell & Co.

CAULFIELD DUBIOUS OF POLICE HOME RULE

Says He Favors It Under Restrictions That Will Prevent Abuse.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 19.—Gov. Caulfield of Missouri declared here yesterday that he was opposed to police "home rule" for the three largest cities in Missouri if it would result in turning over police departments to political machines.

Caulfield said the present system by which the Governor appoints Police Commissioners for St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph was adopted when Democrats were in control of the Legislature and the Governor's office. The Democrats were satisfied for 40 years, he said, or until a Republican was elected Governor.

"Then," he continued, "dissatisfaction developed and the Democrats, still in control of the Legislature, passed a bill providing for home rule. A Republican Governor vetoed it.

"I am a city man," the Governor added in his speech before the South Central Business Association. "I understand the thought behind the layman's desire for home rule. I have been for it and in my heart right now I favor it in the broadest sense. It is nonsense for any one party to attempt to claim any credit concerning it.

"But if the only purpose of the present agitation for home rule is to turn the Kansas City Police Department over to a political machine, it ought to be killed.

"The primary question involved is the best method of dealing with crime. We, that is the State, must retain sufficient control to see that the laws are enforced.

"I would favor home rule under such restrictions as would prevent it from being prostituted to a bad end. I hope when the Legislature convenes, we may accomplish something to that end."

The Governor turned to Joseph B. Shannon of Kansas City, Democratic Congressman-elect from the Fifth District who sat at the speaker's table, and said:

"If Joe Shannon here would run for Governor on a platform that he would give good school systems to the rich districts and poor systems to the poor districts, he would not get far; but that is what you have in Missouri today."

Gov. Caulfield then predicted that by 1937 Missouri's road system would be double the mileage of the elaborate highway system of ancient Rome. He urged immediate relief of crowded conditions at the State penitentiary.

FORMER CHILEAN CONSUL LEAPS FROM SHIP TO DEATH

Body of Oscar L. de la Barra Is Found in Chesapeake Bay.

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 19.—The body of Oscar L. de la Barra, 28 years old, former chief of the Chilean Consulate in Baltimore was found late last night off Bodkin Point in Chesapeake Bay 10 miles from Baltimore. A coroner gave a verdict of suicide.

De la Barra was missed as the City of Norfolk, a bay liner, docked here Tuesday morning. In his stateroom was found a note indicating he had leaped overboard. Later in the day his attorney in the city received a note saying, "by the time you receive this I will be dead."

Reeling from the consulate last April after 18 months' service, De la Barra became connected with the Guaranty Trust Co. Two years ago he was secretary of the International Commission that settled the Tacna-Arica boundary dispute. Speaking of his death his attorney said "the only explanation I can think of is that a physician told him something which to a man of his queer philosophy of life, led him to kill himself."

INVESTIGATORS GO INTO STOCK DEAL OF FEDERAL JUDGE

U. S. Agent Testifies He Was Told to "Break" Mann Act Case Against Memphis Lumberman.

By the Associated Press.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 19.—A congressional committee investigating the judicial conduct of Federal Judge Harry B. Anderson of the Western Tennessee District heard testimony today regarding accusations that the jurist threatened to press Mann act charges against a Memphis lumberman and then offered to abandon the prosecution if a business transaction were accomplished as he wished it.

The jurist's accusers have charged he made known his intention of prosecuting the Mann act charge against Bart Tully, associated with the Anderson-Tully Lumber Co., founded by Judge Anderson's father, but later said the case would not be pressed if the Tully family would pay the Judge's family $125,000 for stock in the company.

U. S. Agent a Witness.
William Larsen, a Department of Justice man, was the witness today. He testified the Mann act charge was pressed against Bart Tully just before Tully and Judge Anderson completed a stock transaction in 1926.

He declared Assistant District Attorney Herbert Harper ordered him to "break" the case two days before the lumber company directors met to set a price for the stock.

To a question by Representative La Guardia, a committeeman conducting the examination, Larsen replied he told Harper several times there was no basis for the Mann act charge, which involved Tully's former secretary. On cross examination, he said he "wouldn't answer yes" to a question whether Harper and others evidently believed there had been a violation of the Mann act.

Charge Was Abandoned.
The charge against Tully was abandoned several weeks before members of the Anderson family severed their connections with the lumber company, records disclosed. Tully appeared before a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee in Washington last spring and made the charges regarding what he described as Judge Anderson's conduct in the Mann act case. The House authorized the hearing in Memphis and yesterday Tully repeated his accusations.

GENERAL MANAGER APPOINTED FOR HAMILTON-BROWN

Harry L. Tomes Selected to Direct Affairs of Firm During and After Receivership.

Shelby Shoe Co., and then with the Brown Shoe Co., in various executive capacities, until he went to Pedigo-Weber Shoe Co., seven years ago, becoming vice president. He left the company, which is now Pedigo-Lake, last April.

The Hamilton Brown Shoe Co. was founded in 1872 by J. M. Hamilton and Alanson D. Brown. During the years of Brown's greatest activity, the company was the largest of St. Louis shoe manufacturing and jobbing concerns. Its

A special meeting of stockholders has been called for Dec. 4, to vote on a proposal to issue 100,000 shares of additional common stock for the corporation.

William R. Gentry, receiver, and Luke E. Hart, attorney for the corporation, announced Tomes' appointment yesterday. At the same time, the receiver stated that, since taking charge May 26, he had accumulated more than $1,000,000, which is now available to pay on the company's indebtedness. This does not include the money, between $500,000 and $600,000, which has accumulated in the hands of the receivers appointed in Boston for the company's holdings located there.

Receiver Gentry said the company, in the seven weeks before his appointment, paid $1,500,000 on its indebtedness to banks. The company's ability to make these large payments and still keep the business in operation, should prove, Gentry said, that it can continue in business successfully.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
CASHER OF CLOSED BANK CLEARED OF CONSPIRACY
W. R. Hord, Tubbett, Mo., Is Under Two-Year Sentence in Connection With Crash.

By the Associated Press.
COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 19.—A conspiracy charge against W. R. Hord, 59-year-old cashier of the defunct Bank of Tubbett, at Tubbett, Mo., today was dismissed by Judge H. A. Collier when he ruled that the State's testimony was insufficient.

Hord, however, faces a two-year prison term in connection with the failure of the bank, in which a shortage of $20,118 was found. He was convicted last July and is now out on bond pending an appeal. Three other cases, involving acceptance of deposits when he knew the bank was failing, were continued to the January term. The cases were brought here from Callaway County on a change of venue.

Doctor B. Cal. says: "Pluto Water is pleasant to take and is prompt and efficient in its action."
Doctor F. Mich. says: "I have used and prescribed Pluto Water for years."
Doctor C. Mo. says: "Pluto Water is quick in results."
Doctor Z. Pa. says: "Pluto Water acts quickly yet gently and certainly in constipation."
Doctor T. Pa. says: "Pluto Water is natural and definite in action—positive in results."
Doctor R. Pa. says: "Pluto Water eliminates poisons, restores normal healthy activity."
Doctor M. Cal. says: "Americans are a constipated nation and Pluto will cleanse the subject, 'America's Physic.'"

Take the Doctor's Advice About PLUTO WATER

MOST people foolishly just go ahead and buy a brand name when they need a physic. They don't stop to ask a doctor's advice. It is always wise to consult your doctor. Here we offer the advice not of one doctor but of twenty-three! This group of doctors from all over the country plainly tells you—"Use Pluto Water."
The originals of these endorsements and photographs are in our files at French Lick Springs. However, out of respect to long-standing custom in the medical profession—and because medical societies prefer that doctor-members refrain from lending their names to printed advertisements—we have, in fairness to these doctors, omitted their names and made their photographs unrecognizable.
For fifty years, doctors have recognized the remarkable efficacy of Pluto Water. Thousands today prescribe it for constipation and attending ills. They well know the advantages of a saline laxative. And they consider Pluto the perfect saline. From America's Spa, French Lick, Indiana, Pluto brings you all the health properties which attract thousands yearly to the world-famous French Lick mineral springs. Take Pluto before breakfast. In 30 minutes to two hours you enjoy full, perfect relief! Pluto truly cleans the tract—in nature's way, by water-washing. Because it is essentially a natural way, it causes no discomfort—it is as gentle and harmless as it is thorough and complete. Two sizes—20c and 45c, at drug stores and fountains.

Doctor J. Ill. says: "I have used Pluto Water in my practice and always found it to be a very good laxative."
Doctor H. Pa. says: "I consider Pluto Water a satisfactory saline eliminant and have used and recommended it for many years."
Doctor H. Cal. says: "For 20 years I have prescribed Pluto Water for the most obstinate cases of constipation and it has always been successful."
Doctor J. Md. says: "I prescribe Pluto Water for cases where non-irritating action of a saline mineral water laxative is indicated."
Doctor B. Va. says: "Pluto Water produces quick and complete elimination of poisonous wastes."
Doctor C. Cal. says: "I have prescribed Pluto Water for the past 30 years with marked success."

Doctor W. Ohio says: "Pluto Water is the most and most efficient Mineral Spring Water I have prescribed during the last 20 years."
Doctor H. Ohio says: "Pluto is the most and most efficient Mineral Spring Water I have prescribed during the last 20 years."
Doctor W. Mo. says: "I frequently prescribe Pluto Water to effect complete elimination and find it an efficient and quick remedy."
Doctor R. Ill. says: "Pluto Water is a most efficient and quick remedy for constipation and attending ills."

RUSSIA SEEKS REDUCTION IN SIZE OF CAPITAL SHIPS

Soviet Delegate at Geneva Moves to Limit Weight to 10,000 Tons With 12-Inch Guns.

BRITAIN FAVORABLE TO THE PRINCIPLE

But Objects That Proposal Is Outside Sphere of Preparatory Commission—No Action Taken.

By the Associated Press. GENEVA, Nov. 12.—Maxim Litvinoff, Russian delegate to the preparatory disarmament meetings, today moved to reduce the maximum weight of capital ships to 10,000 tons with 12-inch guns.

The commission, however, declined to enter into the merits of the question.

The draft under consideration contains the maximum figures of the Washington treaty—35,000 tons with 16-inch guns—as submitted by the great naval powers.

The Soviets, said Litvinoff, wanted to do away with arms of an offensive nature, regarding present day battleships as belonging to this class.

Lord Cecil said that the British Government favored such a move. Litvinoff suggested but felt that the preparatory commission was not competent to fix the figures.

Hugh S. Gibson, the American delegate, said he would refrain from voting on the proposal but wished it understood that the American Government was not taking a position of opposition to reduction in the size of the armaments of capital ships.

The commission finally voted unanimously to remove the figures of tonnage and caliber from the draft treaty, leaving blanks for the general conference to fill.

Limitation by Category. The commission adopted articles 1 and 2 of the draft treaty, which embody the principles of limitation by category and the privilege of transferring part of tonnage, as in the London treaty.

Great Britain took exception to a proposal of the smaller powers which would have permitted absolute freedom of transfer of tonnage for states having navies of less than 100,000 tons.

The British position was that Great Britain could not agree that any state put an unrestricted proportion of its total tonnage into submarines. This also was understood to be in principle the position of the American Government.

The draft finally approved allows navies under 100,000 tons freedom of transfer with the reservation that some limit may be arranged for the percentage of tonnage in submarines.

Victory for Litvinoff. The commission, by a vote of 14 to 2, yesterday decided to include in the draft treaty a clause providing for limitation of naval armaments.

The words "to reduce" were inserted in the article on the motion of Litvinoff. This was his first victory as champion of radical disarmament measures. But it was short-lived, for after agreeing to add "to reduce" the commission added the phrase "as far as possible."

The addition caused Litvinoff to become sarcastic. "I suggest," he said, "that this commission rename itself the Preparatory Commission for Disarmament If Possible."

It was in a moment of apparent cleverness that the commission added Litvinoff's two word amendment to the original clause, which said nothing about reduction. Rene Massigli of France was quick to rectify what his colleagues had committed themselves to.

A lengthy argument ensued as to whether the amendment offered by the Frenchman should read "if possible" or "as far as possible." Finally the formula offered by Eric Cohen of Spain and incorporated in the clause quoted was adopted.

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Nov. 19.—Maxim Litvinoff, Russian delegate to the preparatory disarmament meetings,
today moved to reduce the maximum weight of capital ships to 10,000 tons with 12-inch guns.

The commission, however, declined to enter into the merits of the question.

The draft under consideration contains the maximum figures of the Washington treaty—35,000 tons with 16-inch guns submitted by the great naval powers.

The Soviets said Litvinoff, wanted to do away with arms of an offensive nature, regarding present day battleships as belonging to this class.

Lord Cecil said that the British Government favored such a move
as Litvinoff suggested but felt that the preparatory commission was not competent to fix the figures.

Hugh S. Gibson, the American delegate, said he would refrain from voting on the proposal but stated it understood that the American Government was not taking a position of opposition to reduction in the size of the armaments of capital ships.

The commission finally voted unanimously to remove the figures of tonnage and caliber from the draft treaty, leaving blanks for the final conference to fill.

Initiation by Secretary.
The commission adopted articles
1 and 2 of the naval draft, emphasizing the principles of limitation and the privilege of modernizing part of tonnage, as in the London treaty.

Great Britain took exception to a proposal of the smaller Powers which would have permitted absolute freedom of transfer of tonnage between navies of less than 10,000 tons.

The British position was that Great Britain could not agree that any state not an unrestricted producer of its total tonnage into commerce. This also was understood to be in principle the position of the American Government.

The draft finally approved allowed nations under 100,000 tons
freedom of transfer with the restriction that some limit may be arranged for the percentage of tonnage in submarines.

Victory for Litvinoff.
The commission, by a vote of 14
to 2, yesterday decided to include in the draft treaty a clause providing for limitation of naval armaments. The text of the clause, as finally adopted, reads:

"The high contracting powers
agree to limit and as far as possible
to reduce their naval armaments."
The words "to reduce" were inserted in the article on the motion of Litvinoff. This was his first victory as champion of radical disarmament measures. But it was short-lived, for after agreeing to add "to reduce" the commission added the phrase "as far as possible."

The addition caused Litvinoff to become sarcastic.

"I suggest," he said, "that this commission rename itself the Preparatory Commission for Disarm-ment if possible."

It was in a moment of apparent goodwill that the commission added Litvinoff's two word amendment to the original clause, which said nothing about reduction. Rene Maugé of France was quick to reply what his colleagues had committed themselves to.

A lengthy argument ensued as to whether the amendment offered by the Frenchman should read "if possible" or "as far as possible." Finally the result offered by Eric Cobden of Spain and incorporated in the clause quoted was adopted.

PROBLEM OF NATURAL GAS AND USE IN HOMES HERE AND IN OTHER BIG CITIES

Companies Expect to Make This Fuel Available to Domestic Users in St. Louis But Cannot Say When.

In view of the widespread interest in natural gas, which in the last year or two has been piped long distances to several large cities, the Post-Dispatch has sought to learn what, if any, plans are in prospect for supplying this fuel to the domestic consumers of St. Louis.

Inquiry discloses that the agencies which might be expected to provide natural gas either have no plans in view or are unwilling to state them.

There was probably the first large city far removed from the gas fields to have natural gas piped to it. When the pipe line of the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation
from Monroe, La., to St. Louis, some 430 miles in length, was completed and the gas turned on just a year ago, the event was hailed as the beginning of a new era in natural gas transportation. It was the greatest distance natural gas
had been piped up to that time.

That pipe line has a capacity of 100,000,000 cubic feet a day, probably three times the daily volume of manufactured gas supplied to all of St. Louis by the Laclede Gas Light Co. The proprietors of the pipe line sought a market for their gas among the industries of the St.
Louis metropolitan area. They offered attractive rates but so far they are selling only about 45 per cent of the capacity.

More than 55,000,000 cubic feet, is more than the total consumption of manufactured gas in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

Benjamin C. Comfort, general manager of the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation, was asked what the policy of his company is toward making its gas available for domestic consumption in St. Louis. He said he had expected the question,
knew it would have to be answered
in time, but was not in a position to give the answer.

He said that only the company's president, Christy Payne, in New York, could speak with authority on the question of policy. Efforts of the Post-Dispatch to reach Payne by telephone at his New York office were unsuccessful and a telegram to him brought no response.

Responsible executives of the Utilities Power & Light Co., which owns Laclede Gas, were unwilling to discuss their plans for publication although admitting that the subject was one to which they were giving their attention.

County Gas Co. Willing.
For the St. Louis County Gas Co., Louis H. Egan, its president, said his company would provide natural gas for its customers if it could be obtained at a price to justify its use.

The price the pipe line company quoted to both Laclede and the County company was 40 cents a thousand cubic feet. At that price
it probably could not be distributed to domestic consumers at any lower rate than is now charged for manufactured gas, in the production of which the companies have the advantage of cheap nearby coal.

But the natural gas has heat value of 1000 British Thermal Units per cubic foot compared with 550 to 600 for the manufactured product. If consumers purchased it for the same price they now pay for manufactured gas
they would obtain a greater value,
and at first would use much less gas in volume with the result that the gross revenues of the companies would be substantially reduced. Since their operating expenses could not be reduced proportionately they would suffer a loss of income.

For this reason the operators of the gas companies believe they would be justified in changing over to natural gas only if they could give the consumers a rate advantage which would greatly stimulate consumption. This means use for house heating, water heating, refrigeration and the like.

Situation in Other Cities.
In other large cities to which natural gas has been piped in the year since it was first brought to

St. Louis, among them being San Francisco, Atlanta and Memphis,
the gas has been made available
for domestic distribution and its use for house heating has been promoted. In Kansas City, where natural gas has been used for several years, the distributing company is engaged in a campaign to increase its use for house heating.

There is wide discrepancy between the rates at which the pipe lines sell gas to industries and that which they ask the local distributing companies to pay for it. In the vicinity of St. Louis the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation is selling industrial gas to large consumers as low as 13 cents per 1000
cubic feet to compete with steam coal. Prices to smaller consumers are around 20 to 25 cents. The contracts of the low rate consumers are said to be subject to cancellation on short notice.

Pipe line operators justify the higher rate quoted the distributing companies on the ground that the domestic demand is much less even than the industrial demand.

They say the peak of domestic demand in winter may run as high as 10 times the low point of summer demand and that as a consequence the equipment necessary to supply the peak remains idle much of the time, with overhead and carrying charges on the investment going on.

Pipe line companies also calculate their depreciation at a high rate. Usually they try to amortize a pipe line in 15 to 20 years. This is because of the uncertainty of the supply of gas. Engineers and geologists differ as to the prospective life of the gas fields. Some believe the supply will not show signs of exhaustion for a generation
or more, some consider it practically inexhaustible, others regard it as highly uncertain.

Natural Gas and Smoke Problem.

Natural gas has been widely discussed as a means of reducing the smoke cloud over St. Louis. Since the gas burns without smoke, its general use as a fuel for all purposes would eliminate smoke. But to get into the homes and factories and commercial buildings it has to overcome the competition of cheap coal. St. Louis, with vast mines at its door, has very cheap coal.

To compete on a price basis with coal at $7.50 a ton, natural gas would have to be available at about 30 cents a thousand feet. Such a price is out of the question according to the producers, except at points very near the gas wells. Thus the householder who burns natural gas must expect to pay a premium
for cleanliness and convenience.

The use of gas for heating also requires either the installation of special equipment or the conversion of existing equipment. In Kansas City the gas company sells a conversion burner for all types of home heating plants for $125
on payments of $5 a month. In San Francisco such a burner was sold for $110. The conversion burner recommended by the Laclede company sells for $250.

"Dry" Gas From Texas.

The gas furnished from the vast fields of Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana is said to be more dependable in cold weather than that which formerly came from shallow wells in Kansas.
It is called "dry" gas and is said not to be subject to freezing.
Before it is put in pipe lines it is treated to remove a certain amount of gasoline which otherwise would condense in the line.

It goes through the pipe lines
at a pressure of 300 to 400 pounds per square inch and compressors
at intervals maintain the pressure and keep the gas moving.

A pipe line about 1000 miles long is now being constructed to carry gas from the Texas fields to Kansas City. There the People's Gas Light & Coke Co. will mix it with manufactured gas and distribute it generally. The consumers probably will not get any lower rate
because the company will charge
for its gas on the basis of heat units.

reached. Chairman Fess was fully advised as to all of the matters under consideration, and the results
met with his entire approval."

Bill to End Postoffice Leases.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.— Leased postoffice buildings would be abandoned in favor of Government-owned structures under a bill which Representative Kelly will introduce at the coming session of Congress. After conferring today with President Hoover,
the Pennsylvania Republican said
his program looked to construction over a 20-year period and would apply to all cities having first, second and third class postoffices.

DO-X ATLANTIC FLIGHT ALMOST CERTAIN TO BE ABANDONED

Maurice Dornier Says Weather Is Bad All Along Route to New York.

By the Associated Press.
LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 19.— Maurice Dornier, Dr. Claude Dorn-ier's brother, announced today that it was almost certain the projected trans-Atlantic flight of the seaplane Do-X would be abandoned
because of adverse weather all along the Portuguese coast and across the Atlantic.

By the Associated Press.
BORDEAUX, France, Nov. 19.—
Departure of the Do-X for Corunna, Spain, and Lisbon, Portugal, was postponed again today. It was raining hard and there was a low flying ceiling.

Dr. Claude Dornier, inventor and constructor of the big plane, seemed anxious to hurry the departure from Bordeaux, last night's reception to Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, to which the
Do-X's officers were not invited, seeming to sit less well with him
than with others aboard the boat.
Capt. Christiansen took a firm stand against departure, remarking: "I am ready to leave, doctor,
but I cannot assume responsibility for the safety of the ship." Others had also disapproved of a start under the adverse weather conditions.

EDITORIAL REFORMS IN CUBA
PROPOSED AFTER NEW CENSUS

Quiet Throughout Island Gives Opportunity to Consider Change

By the Associated Press.
HAVANA, Nov. 19.—With quiet restored throughout the island
after several days of disorder, the Senate Electoral committee, has taken up a number of suggested electoral reforms.

Propositions before the committee include:

Compulsory voting with nonvot-ers liable to a fine; elimination of duplicate ballots; voting for political parties instead of individual candidates; ballots to be filled before being brought to the polls;
forbidding coalition of parties and making Government employees ineligible to membership on electoral boards unless their resignation had been filed a year previous.

The reform proposals call for a new census before the new electoral code should be inaugurated.
The only disturbance reported throughout the island yesterday was at Santa Clara which the police handled easily and no one was injured. President Machado has issued an order for the clearance
of all students confined in Cienfuegos,
in the province of Santa Clara.

HOOVER MESSAGE ON VIRGIL

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—A festival of poetry, music and beauty crowded Carnegie Hall last night
as the climax of America's celebration of the 200th birthday of Virgil, Roman poet. The festival was held under auspices of the American Classical League.

President Hoover sent a letter in which he said, "So much of our language and literary art derives directly from the Latin classics that the study of them must ever remain an indispensable part of the training of one of the most valuable types of the mind. The youthful struggles to master Virgil's lines have been forgotten by millions who in maturity recall only that he brought to life and the world about us a new meaning and fresh beauty."

JUDGE STEIN EXPLAINS RULING ON SAFETY ZONES

nance Establishing Them

ficer to Do So.

NO QUESTION OF VALIDITY INVOLVED

Points to Adverse Ruling
by Supreme Court Under Similar Circumstances Involving Traffic Light.

Editor Post-Dispatch:
Your recent editorial and news items with reference to safety zones and my ruling concerning the subject, are very obviously based upon confusion and misapprehension as to the facts on your part.

Contrary to your apparent impression, there is no ordinance whatsoever, either designating and establishing safety zones or authorizing any person or officer to establish or designate the same. Apparently you are under the impression that the ordinance undertook to delegate to the Director of Streets and Sewers this duty. No such provision is made by any ordinance. Ordinance No. 332232 of the City of St. Louis, provides, among other things, that it shall be unlawful for the operator of a vehicle to drive through a safety zone. This provision of the ordinance is valid, but unfortunately neither the mentioned ordinance
nor any other act undertakes to create safety zones, or even to provide for the establishment and designation of the same by any public body or officer.

Ordinance No. 37119 prohibits
the stopping or parking of a vehicle between a safety zone and the adjacent curb, and also prohibits the parking or stopping of a vehicle in "ANY LOADING ZONE," and then authorizes the Director of Streets and Sewers to establish
"LOADING ZONES IN THE CON-GESTED DISTRICT IN THIS CITY," BUT WHOLLY FAILS TO MAKE ANY PROVISION FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OR DESI-GNATION OF SAFETY ZONES.

About two weeks ago a defendant
charged with the alleged offense
of parking parallel to a safety zone, through his counsel, called the mentioned situation to the attention of myself as Provisional Judge in City Court No. 1, and contended that the Court was without authority to fine the defendant
because no safety zone had been established either by the Board of Aldermen or by any officer or public body of the City of St. Louis pursuant to any authority or duty
delegated by the Board of Aldermen. Upon careful examination of the ordinances I found the objection well taken, and requested the

NEW YORK SHERIFF TESTIFIES IN TAMMANY CHIEFS TRIAL

Declares He Made Recommendations on All Jobs in His District.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Testimony of Tammany leaders in the trial of Martin J. Healy and Thomas T.
Tammamny, charged with bartering
an appointment as Magistrate to George F. Ewald for a $10,000 loan, continued today, with Sheriff
Thomas M. Farley as the first witness.

The defense objected to the questioning of the Sheriff about the method of Tammany's appointments on the ground that the question called for expert testimony.

"Do you doubt that this witness is an expert?" Supreme Court Justice McCook asked. "Objection overruled."

The Sheriff went ahead to explain that he made recommendations for all jobs given men from his district, even down to common laborers.

The purpose of the Prosecution's questioning was to adduce information as to a district leader's influence in obtaining appointments.

LEGALIZATION OF 5 PCT. BEER IS PLANNED IN FINLAND

Present Limit Is 2 Pct.; Government to Introduce Measure in Diet.

HELSINKI, Finland, Nov.
19.—The Finnish Government is understood to have decided to introduce a bill in the diet raising the alcoholic strength of beer permitted to be sold from 2 to 5 per cent.

Opponents of the present regime
under which the sale of beverages
containing more than two per cent of alcohol is prohibited, today interpreted this as the first of successive measures to revise the prohibition law.

A prohibition regime was established in Finland in 1913. Severe penalties in the form of fines and jail sentences were provided. In February, 1928, the Finnish Diet adopted several amendments making enforcement more rigorous.
Last November Justice Nordgren
of the Supreme Court made a proposal that the prohibition law be terminated, but his colleagues on the bench rejected the idea.

CITY GUARD DOUBLED

Roundup of the Disaffected

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Nov. 19.—Armed with sawed-off shotguns and side arms,
police patrolled this city today
while the Government took final steps to break up a Communist plot to upset the throne and establish a republic.

More than 60 Communists and republican leaders of Madrid have been jailed since Monday, when authorities first discovered the plot, and a similar roundup has been ordered in the provinces
where general strikes still are in progress.

Government officials say that the Communist and republican agitators planned to create disturbances
here and in the ensuing confusion
bring about the fall of the monarchy.

Authorities think the movement lacked any considerable strength,
considering the diverse character of the elements concerned and that little co-ordination could have been expected from leaders of the two cliques. Their arrest is thought definitely to have terminated the threat, but as a precautionary measure guards in the city are maintained in doubled number.

Alarmist reports circulated that various units of the army were involved in the conspiracy were denied by Government officials.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Opposes Further Civic Improvement.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WITH all due respect to your editorial policy and the many fine things accomplished by your newspaper, many of the citizens of the city take exception to your idea of a greater St. Louis. St. Louis can only become a great city through the contentment and satisfaction of its people. The growing burden of taxation is becoming too heavy and increasing numbers are turning their backs on the city and seeking other financial institutions to go elsewhere.

When we voted the $87,000,000 bonds some years ago, that sum was supposed to do all the street widening, build the Courthouse and other municipal buildings, and install our street lighting system. But we have found that we have been forced to dig deep into our pockets to supply the deficit. In addition to that, valuation of real estate has been advanced for purpose of taxation until little property can be sold for what the Assessor says it is worth. To fill out this picture of distress, the poor must be housed and the landlord pays the freight. Out of that, the poor get occupancy, probably not more than 70 per cent is collected.

This is certainly a poor time to raise taxes or talk about bonds for further taxation. Before St. Louis can go ahead she must first get her house in order. The city of Detroit has done just this thing, and under the leadership of Banker Stone has reduced the tax rate (which never was as high as that in St. Louis) to $20.10 per thousand. They are following a program of rigid economy and that is what St. Louis must do if she is going to go forward. Propositions 5 and 6 were defeated for good reason; the people have had enough of municipal craft and inefficiency. You found out Lyckoff case. How many more are there that have not been discovered? No street until we acquire that economy and efficiency—no more bonds, no more improvements, no more—nothing.

Law and Business in Georgia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
YOUR recent editorial on the legal persecution of 75-year-old Floyd Waters in Georgia for the high crime of having home brew is indeed a story of the dark ages. You quote the Court as saying that beverages made from malt, whether or not alcoholic or intoxicating, are illegal and you justly exclaim against such fanatical laws. But did you suspect that fanaticism in Georgia might be adulterated with a very potent beverage? Could it be possible that our holy law might be stretched to exclude near-beer, malted milk or any other drink which might compete with a highly advertised Atlanta beverage? Business is business.

The Proposed Senate Closure.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
TO save its face the Hoover administration is appealing to Democratic leaders in Congress to support a closure rule that is aimed at possible filibusters by the so-called Progressive bloc, thereby shutting off debate on the floor of the Senate, so highly important legislation could be sidetracked. That the Democratic party would abandon the liberal policies which gained its candidates so many votes at this election and enter into an agreement with the thoroughly discredited Hoover administration is both unthinkable and unlikely. It is significant that this proposed attempt to force closure is reported to be aimed at probable hydro-electric legislation.

One thing is certain. Were James A. Reed in the Senate he would never sit meekly still if such a bi-partisan deal threatened to become a fact. He would not remain silent when they tried to advance the oligarchy of those holy prohibitionists, Senator Fess, Arthur M. Hyde and the great Indiana statesman, Arthur S. Robinson, whose ascension to high places has nearly wrecked a great political party. And this newest move might be for the purpose of forcing a Progressive presidential candidate in 1932, in the hope that these present Republican leaders might retain control through a serious split among the voters.

Married Women vs. Jobless Men.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I BELIEVE the Laclede Gas Light Co. should have a word of praise for the just and courageous stand it has taken by requesting the resignation of the married women employees and replacing them with men of families and single women who have to earn their own living and possibly aged parents or other dependents.

If other large corporations would follow this example it would do much toward relieving this unemployment situation that confronts us. If the United States Government would take this up and make it a national policy to employ only men and single women who need work in the different Government activities, it would be a great benefit to the entire country. This married woman menace in the employment world is becoming one of the most serious problems that now confronts us.

JUSTICE.

THE HIGHWAY PROBLEM.

The national investigation of interstate transportation which the Interstate Commerce Commission has opened with a hearing in St. Louis will almost certainly result in interstate regulation of busses and trucks. As Commissioner Brainerd points out, the interstate commerce act needs to be brought up to date in order to provide the proper public authority for control of motor transportation in co-ordination with railroads.

That the motor bus must be reckoned with is proved by the commission's figures, which show in 10 years a decline of $240,000,000 in passenger business by railroads in the Western district. Acceptance of the bus line by the railroad in the establishment of subsidiary companies further shows the secure place of motor transportation in the nation's transportation system. The importance of the investigation is attested by representatives of practically all of the Western railroads and many bus lines at the hearing, which was the first of 17 scheduled for transportation centers throughout the country. Its problems are many.

Indeed, the modern highway is a problem both to the nation and the state. The situation in Missouri is typical of that in many states. Under Missouri laws there is no regulation of freight-carrying motor trucks. A law limiting the weight and size of motor vehicles on public highways has been in effect since 1925, but the State has no direct enforcement powers. Action against offenders is dependent upon local officials in the counties. Bills to establish State regulation of freight trucks, and to further restrict weights and sizes, and to centralize enforcement of such regulations, failed at the last legislative session, chiefly because of opposition from truck operators and rural legislators.

The principal opposition to the trucks comes from the railroads, and there is unquestioned justification for it. The railroads complain that they are heavily taxed, while the trucks are not regulated as to rates or service, use State-built highways for their operations, and pay State truck license fees that are not in proportion to the wear and tear on the highways caused by large trucks. Complaints of motorists about hazards to traffic from large commercial vehicles, together with damage to the roads by large trucks, likely will result in proposals of further restriction. Motor trucks have an advantage over the railroads in their greater mobility and door delivery. They are making great inroads into the business of the railroads on both long and short hauls, but little if anything is being done about it. The highway has revolutionized transportation, just as the railroads themselves once did. However, we imagine that when the present transition period is over, the railroads will not be so badly off. They will themselves use busses, as the Chicago & Alton and Missouri Pacific are doing, and a proper preservation of expensive pavements will exclude heavy goods trucks. The railroads are certainly not out of it as effectively as they once put the steamboats out of it.

Gov. Caulfield last September called upon the State Highway Department for a report upon its powers to remedy traffic hazards arising from operation of large commercial vehicles on the roads, and whether additional legislation is needed. He said misuse of the highways by commercial vehicles was a "menacing evil," recalled that the highways were built for the use and convenience of all of the people of the State, and observed that it had not been the intention to provide an expensive paved right-of-way for freight trucks and motor transportation companies to be used in any manner they saw fit.

The Governor's action resulted in more active enforcement of existing regulations. The Highway Commission and Public Service Commission (which regulates motor bus lines) both took action to keep vehicles exceeding the legal limits off the highways. The State Highway Department is working on some legislative recommendations in this connection, but they have not been completed.

The 1927 Legislature passed a State motor bus regulatory law, placing regulation of motor bus lines on State highways under the Public Service Commission. It excludes from commission control all motor bus lines which form a part of a transportation system in a city and adjacent suburban territory, if the major part of the transportation system is within the city.

The law originally provided a sliding scale of fees to be paid by the busses, in addition to the regular State motor license fee, which is based on load capacity. The 1929 Legislature amended the law to require the busses to pay a flat-rate license fee of $10 a year for each seat. This is in addition to the motor license fee, which is in the cases of most busses no more than is paid by large private cars. For 1929 and 1930 these bus fees will total approximately $100,000, which goes to the State road fund to compensate for wear and tear.

The Public Service Commission has control of the routes, fares and service of bus lines under its jurisdiction. It prescribes safety regulations and operating practices, requires posting of liability insurance policies covering injury to passengers or damage to property, and has power to revoke the license of an individual bus driver, or the permit of a bus company, for non-compliance with or violation of any of the orders and regulations of the commission. The commission has issued permits to 332 bus companies. These companies operate from one to 60 busses each. Following the Governor's action the commission ordered all the bus companies to take overstate busses off the highways. One company had 57 busses in operation which exceeded the limits. There was no regulation of trucks as to rates or service. Even wildcat busses, some of them in interstate service, operate with more or less impunity. The State Motor Vehicle Commissioner estimates that approximately 90,000 trucks will be licensed in Missouri this year. The majority of these are small trucks, used in delivery or light hauling service. Many of them, however, are larger. They operate in freight service between cities.

What is to be done with them, with the innumerable busses and with the suffering roads? Both the nation and the State are asking.

DUSK ON THE RIVER.

Gray in every direction. Eads Bridge, whose piers are ever a symphony in gray, rising from gray water, curving gently from gray to gray. Nothingness to the north. To the south a string of tiny lights, on some invisible span, crossing the blended tender gray of sky and river on the way to De Soto's grave. Along the levee blurred blobs of gold—street lamps breaking through the waterfront's shroud—fading out as they escort the Father of Waters from bridge to bridge. Behind the curtain of dull velvet the city of Laclede, hiding low, unseen but there. Noiselessly a small ferry, riding in the mist, its funnel unwinding black trimming from the descending cloak, feeling its way toward the vast unknown of the Illinois shore. Dusk on the river is a Whistler nocturne.

THE BECK PLAN.

James M. Beck offers a solution for the prohibition dilemma. He would have Congress repeal the Volstead law, thereby leaving enforcement of the eighteenth amendment "to the political discretion of the states." Repeal of the eighteenth amendment, he thinks, cannot be effected within a generation. His plan is submitted as "practical," and he says it would not be nullification.

We are not impressed with the Beck plan. It strikes us as a superficial treatment for an organic disease. The legality of his proposition must be assumed, proposed, as it is, by one of our recognized authorities on constitutional law and a former Solicitor-General of the United States. Even so, it is a futile compromise. As long as the eighteenth amendment is in the Constitution prohibition will, in our opinion, continue to bedevil our national life, will continue to rage on all our fronts, governmental, political, social, industrial, will continue to make profitable our illicit liquor traffic.

The thoughtful and earnest opinion of the country—including our authoritative legal opinion as just registered by the American Bar Association, which voted more than two to one for repeal—that is demanding repeal of the eighteenth amendment is not very much concerned with the privilege of drinking a glass of beer, or a highball, or serving wine on its dinner table. That opinion is concerned with removing a police regulation from the Constitution which never should have been put there. It is concerned with freeing our political practice of a wretched controversy that has lowered our entire official personnel, that has impaired our Government's capacity to function, that is dividing us politically into two warring camps.

Awakening public opinion has seen this tyrannical and non-enforceable law plunge the youth of the nation into excesses hitherto unknown, degrade manners, corrode morals and establish a terrifying criminal underworld in power and authority to challenge the state.

Those are the abuses which an increasing body of thought that demands the repeal of the eighteenth amendment is determined to get rid of. Mr. Beck may be right in saying that repeal is a generation away. But near or far, repeal of the eighteenth amendment is the watchword. It is the only honest solution, therefore the only practical one. The repealists are enlisted for the duration of the war.

ANARCHISTIC HUMOR.

Since the rise of communism, anarchy is seldom mentioned and anarchists have all but disappeared. They were always depicted as grim, dour souls who carried a bomb under one arm and a bundle of tracts under the other, and who wouldn't crack a smile, much less burst out in loud guffaws, for anything. It appears, however, not only that some anarchists still remain but that they are capable of humor. For example, the Advance reports a banquet will be given in New York on Nov. 20 for Alexander Berkman, an anarchist who was deported 10 years ago, to commemorate his sixtieth birthday. "Having been deported," the Advance adds, "Berkman will naturally not be able to be present at the banquet." That's worthy of Juvenal.

FRATERNIZING ACROSS THE LINES.

It is by this time plain that fraternizing across the lines in the forthcoming Congress is not to meet the expectations of Mr. Hoover or the seven Democratic leaders whose assurance of co-operation so heartened the Republicans.

Senator Borah has ended that beautiful dream by announcing that the Republican progressives are not going to give any quarter. They are going to hold up the regular appropriation bills until they can get action upon progressive measures, and if they cannot get those measures passed in the short session they will force a special session. Senator McNary of Oregon, Senator Walsh of Montana, and Senator Norris of Nebraska are all in the same mood. They have a battle to win.

We confess to some sympathy with the view of these men that the condition of the country is not such as to warrant co-operation with the people who have let the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill. They are also the people who kept the Government from operating Muscle Shoals when no fair bid for the property was forthcoming from private sources. They stifled the Wagner bills seeking to relieve unemployment. They would not let the lame duck bill get through the House. How the progressive element in the Republican party could co-operate with such a crew is beyond our comprehension. To do so in anything beyond the routine functions of government would be to lend itself to the perpetuation of exactly the thing which precipitated revolt at the polls two weeks ago.

Mr. Hoover feels that this is no time to rock the boat. It is, however, the best of all times to head the boat in the opposite direction. The Republican progressives and a great many of the Democrats have a very plain mandate from the people to do this very thing, and we expect to see them do it. We have as little patience with any expectation from reactionary Republicans that they are not going to do so as we had with the deaf, dumb and blind attitude assumed by Mr. Hoover and his wing of the party when the whole country cried out against aggravating an already bad condition with higher tariffs.

LAWYERS AS RECEIVERS.

In denying a receivership petition for the Moon Motor Car Co., yesterday, Federal Judge Faris observed that of the 40 receivers he has appointed during his 11 years on the bench, only one has shown a profit with the company in receivership.

Judge Faris, who feels "a natural hesitancy" about appointing a receiver, although the Federal courts seem to have arrogated to themselves this privilege, might well be emulated in his hesitancy by other judges.

A large percentage of receivers appointed in both Federal and State courts are lawyers. Judge Faris' experience with them is conclusive evidence that a legal education is no qualification to operate a specialized enterprise that someone may have worked half a lifetime to perfect.

The Return of Thrift

Savings deposits increased $267,000,000 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, as against a decrease of $195,000,000 in preceding 12 months; they now aggregate $28,485,000,000; Christmas Club savings also have gained; tendency toward thrift is characteristic of times of economic depression.

From a Bulletin by Dominick & Dominick.

DURING the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930, savings deposits in United States banks and trust companies increased by more than $267,000,000. Substantial growth in savings during this period contrasts sharply with the record of the preceding 12 months, during which a decrease of $195,000,000 occurred. In addition to the increase in regular savings bank deposits, there has also been a gain in Christmas Club savings, which this year amounted to $612,000,000. These figures clearly reflect the widespread tendency toward thrift which normally characterizes periods of business uncertainty.

It might logically be assumed that the lower rate of industrial activity that has prevailed during the present year, with resultant reduced earnings and unemployment, would have caused a decline, rather than an increase, in total savings deposits. An analysis of past experience reveals, however, that it is precisely under such conditions as those which exist at present, that savings register the greatest increase.

"When conditions in industry and unemployment are not satisfactory," the American Bankers' Association reports, "there is a tendency on the part of those whose income is derived largely from wages to go to extreme lengths in safeguarding themselves financially. They deposit more of their income in the savings departments of banks. If the depression is long continued, these deposits are slowly but gradually withdrawn."

Virtually all of the current increase in deposits occurred during the first six months of this year. Withdrawals from savings accounts were continuous and in large volume throughout 1928 and until the latter part of December, 1929. During that month, however, the low point was reached and since then deposits have increased uninterruptedly.

Although total savings have gained substantially, increases have not been general throughout the country. Indeed, only the New England and mid-Atlantic states reported larger deposits this year than last. The gains in these states, however, whose savings account for 41 per cent of the national total, were sufficient to offset the declines in other parts of the country.

At present, savings deposits are higher than they have ever been before. During the last 15 years they have tripled in volume and now aggregate $28,485,000,000 as compared with $8,807,000,000 in 1915. The present total equals in amount all United States investments in foreign countries including the war debts, and is nearly one-third as large as the estimated national income. Per capita savings in the United States amounting to $232 are very much larger than those in any other country, comparing with $40 for the United Kingdom, $33 for Germany and $10 for France.

The value of such a substantial reserve fund of savings is emphasized by the American Bankers' Association, which points out that: "In the light of this growth and the present volume of savings in banks, the ability of the people to withstand the present depression, even though prolonged, is immeasurably greater than at any former time in the nation's history."

Litvinoff, the Bad Boy of the Geneva Parley

From the New Freeman.

WHEN Litvinoff gets off the train at Geneva, the poor old spavined League of Nations must look at him as if he were a protested draft. He has the only political job on earth that we could get any fun out of or even keep awake over, and if he ever gets tired of it, we will gladly give him a six-month furlough, especially if he will let us time our tenure so that we can take in a session of the League. It must be exhilarating to go into that rats' nest of chicane with no humbug to maintain, no bunk to shoot, and a bud-awl ready for the seat of every pair of broadcloth pants that rises to orate.

Litvinoff trudged into the Geneva mutual-admission conference last week, told the American press that the economic and political state of Europe was laid down once more the subversive and disgusting principle that the way to bring about disarmament was to disarm. It will be remembered that at the last session he nearly rocked the Jungfrau off her plump and ample wheebs by putting forward a series of definite proposals bottomed on this principle; whereas the assembled delegates raised a cry of pain that was heard all the way to the Pillars of Hercules. This time, Maxime came down with the idea of showing up the brethren before they had a chance to get any of their buncombe into print, so when the proceedings opened he was the first man on his feet. He gave it out abruptly, and he gave it cold, that he would insist on reopening the discussion of his former proposals for general disarmament, or "Russia would lose all interest in the majority of other questions on the agenda." In other words, on the question of disarmament the session had to get down to the kind of talk that really meant something; he served notice on the boys that they had to fish, out bait or go ashore.

He spoke in English, and the chairman made the amazing bad break of ruling that no translation of his remarks should be furnished the international press; whereas upon 19 correspondents of the said press in a body and left the hall. This was serious, for without publicity the League could not live as long as a fish out of water; publicity is all it has; it is a creature of windmilling, pure and simple. So the press got its copy, and Maxim got his harpoon into the session clear over the barb. Like Arius Ward with the boy at Shakespeare's tomb, he contented himself with a few words spoken in a sharkistic style, "Thanking the chairman for giving his speech the added importance which forbidden words enjoy."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.

THE crack whistlers of the United States Senate is Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island—the man who defeated former Senator Peter Gerry at the polls on Nov. 4. But he frankly admits that he is a "fair weather sailor." He believes in taking no chances. If weather threatens, he loses no time in finding a harbor or a cove for his trim little craft, the Felicia. There he remains until everything is calm.

The sea has a tremendous appeal for him. He knows the Narragansett like a book. No stranger to the pilot's room, he can handle the Felicia with as much skill as any member of the crew.

In fogs and blustery weather, he always may be found at his station in the control room. He fingers charts and directs his ship's course until a haven is reached.

The Felicia is a familiar craft to Washington. Down on the Potomac it is seen frequently riding easily at its moorings. During hot weather the Metcalfs quit their apartment and take up residence aboard ship. For the best part of every summer they make their home on the comfortable and splendidly equipped boat. Their friends are entertained there. Five or six people in addition to members of the crew are easily cared for.

If the night is uncomfortably warm, the Felicia flies anchor and slips down the river to a spot removed from the city. There safe from heat and mosquitoes, the Metcalfs spend the night, returning in the morning in time for the Senator to get back to his duties at the Capitol.

For more than 30 years Senator Metcalf has turned to the sea for recreation. He has owned boats of all sizes and descriptions. The Felicia has been flying his colors since shortly after the World War.

HE had a steam yacht during the war, but the Government needed a craft of this type, and the Senator surrendered it for service.

The Felicia is 122 feet long and draws from five to six feet of water. It is capable of making 11 knots, although it is rare that her skipper calls for such speed. Speed holds no fascination for him. He has never raced the Felicia against another boat. There is a beautiful silver cup aboard, but it is not a trophy. It was presented to the commander of the Felicia in appreciation of his yacht towing a disabled steam yacht to a place of safety.

FOOTBALL ECONOMICS.

From the Wall Street Journal.
PROBABLY few people appreciate the magnitude of the contribution to American prosperity played by the game of football. Although a sport of principally only seven weeks' duration, college games attract an attendance of over 7,000,000 people and gate receipts estimated at $20,000,000. With incidentals completing the day's event, such as transportation, food, lodgings, beverages, flowers, souvenirs and what not, averaging at least one and one-half times the cost of tickets, indicates a sport of $50,000,000 or more. The Army-Tale game alone probably involved the spending of $1,000,000.

R. PHELPS was intimately acquainted with James Whitcomb Riley for more than 30 years, and, in selecting letters for this volume, he has been purpose to present those which might serve best to tell the story and suggest the living personality of the man for whom he has such affection. There is a deep reason to believe that he has selected admirably in what was really a labor of love. Beginning in 1876, when Riley was 27, Phelps kept a diary, thus covering practically his entire life; for what is lacking in the time covered is supplied in personal reminiscences throughout the volume.

The large number of widely different characters of his correspondents would seem to insure an around expression of the poet's personality, and it is doubtful if biography could reveal any more of the man than himself revealed in these letters. His range was exceedingly wide, and Dr. Phelps tells us that it is to be inferred from the letters that "he cared only for poetry, never talked about anything else." Nor could he ever come to the poetry as the octopus arm of it is, limited in its feeding range only by the limitations of human consciousness. His was a genius of affection—which is a praise indeed in a world like this—and from the testimony of two who knew him, as well as letters here presented, one has the impression that a man so lovable and loving would be hard to locate in the history of nature.

It is reason to believe that the more highly gifted Riley left, and the more he was missed in the memories of those who experienced his power as a personality, for it is probable that he was potentially one of the greatest comedians in the large circle of his day. At least Coquelin thought so, and very Irving agreed. All his life Riley seems, from these letters, to have retained his early sense of humor and surprise at his own success. It is his boyish exuberance, never quite deserting him, and his simple, deep affection for humankind that makes a book a delight. It would be a pity, perhaps, to show why it was not among the great poets, Homer, Aeschylus, Shakespeare, etc.; but it was truly a great

PLAN COMMISSION APPROVES TOWER GROVE PARK ROADWAY

Depressed Route Would Cost $164,000 and Is Listed With Morganford Widening Plan.

A plan announced last spring for the proposed depressed roadway across Tower Grove Park from Arsenal street and Morganford road to a point on Magnolia avenue 350 feet west of Tower Grove avenue was approved by the City Plan Commission last night. It now will be submitted for definite approval to the commissioners of the park, which is independent of the city system. The park board had been consulted in making the plan but likely will not be asked to help finance it, as the object is for traffic relief and to save a long detour for commercial vehicles.

The roadway would be 40 feet wide and would cost about $164,000. It would give access to Tower Grove and Vandeventer avenues on the north and there is pending in the Board of Public Service a bill to widen Morganford road from 60 to 80 feet between Arsenal street and the southern city limits. The widening, officials think, would be of little value without this roadway. The State contemplates bringing in a new highway from Morganville, St. Louis County, over Morganford road.

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—Prof. Albert Einstein today asked the Jewish Telegraphic Agency to express his thanks for all the invitations that have come to him from friends in the United States in connection with his impending visit there and to communicate his regret at the impossibility of accepting any of them.

Dr. Einstein has received numerous offers of hospitality from all parts of the United States and more than a score of invitations to deliver addresses.

He expects to arrive in New York Dec. 3, but will remain aboard his ship during the three days it is in port, or stay incognito at some quiet hotel, because he requires complete rest. Afterwards he will continue his trip to California by steamer.

about the termination today or tomorrow of the general strike which has paralyzed Barcelona, Alicante, Oviedo and other Spanish cities, causing clashes in which five persons have been killed and several hundred have been injured.

Rioting broke out again in Alicante late this afternoon, and a dozen or more men were wounded when strikers clashed with police and civil guards. The disturbance was quickly put down but it left business at a standstill.

Disorders Follow Unexpected Walk-out in Seville.

SEVILLE, Spain, Nov. 19.—A general strike was called in Seville today, disorders following immediately when striking workmen clashed with police. Two persons were wounded.

The strike was entirely unexpected. It was called apparently in sympathy with the movement earlier this week in Madrid and Barcelona.

Many Workmen Return to Jobs in Barcelona.

BARCELONA, Spain, Nov. 19.—Squads of police patrolled the streets today while thousands of workmen, who for two days have been away from their jobs on a general strike, went back to work.

The resumption was only partial, however, and other thousands of workmen, most of them food, spent the day in the country on picnics. Street cars and buses operated today but there were few taxis because of a shortage of gasoline. Police trucks carrying food for distribution had large signs: "We are carrying food, do not attack."

About 20,000 workers in the important Spanish textile center of Manresa, near Barcelona, went on strike today in sympathy with the workers in Barcelona.

JUDGE STEIN EXPLAINS RULING OF SAFETY ZONES

City Counselor to submit a brief on behalf of the prosecution, and continued the case for a period of 10 days in order to enable the City Counselor and his assistants to carefully study and brief the subject. Last week I was advised by the Assistant City Counselor, in charge of prosecutions in City Court No. 1, that the matter had been carefully studied, and that after a careful examination of the law the city's legal department had been unable to find any legal authority in opposition to the objection of the mentioned defendant, and also had been unable to find any ordinance either establishing or delegating to some official or public body the duty of establishing safety zones.

In other words, there is involved not the validity of an ordinance, but rather the total absence of any ordinance on the subject. Very obviously, therefore, it was and is my duty to discharge all persons charged with driving through or parking parallel to a "safety zone," for the very simple reason that no safety zones have been established. For me to do otherwise would be unconscionable, and a deliberate violation of my duty and my oath of office.

I am obligated to render decisions in accordance with the law as enacted by the Board of Aldermen and as interpreted by the Appellate Courts. I personally am a firm believer in the desirability of safety zones, and trust that the situation will be remedied by proper legislation, but in the meantime to rule in accordance with my own views rather than in accordance with the law would be tyrannical, and would operate to deprive persons of their money or liberty without due process of law.

You will recall that a few years ago the City of St. Louis established a Traffic Council and delegated to it the power and authority of promulgating traffic rules and to determine the territory to which they should apply. One Edward M. Cavanaugh was arrested for driving his automobile in disregard of an automatic stop signal erected by the Traffic Council, and he immediately filed a habeas corpus proceeding in the Supreme Court of Missouri, and on March 15, 1930, in the case of Cavanaugh vs. Gork, Chief of Police, reported in 230 S. W. 2d, the Supreme Court of Missouri ordered Cavanaugh discharged, and ruled that the traffic rules promulgated by the Traffic Council were unauthorized, and that the Board of Aldermen could not delegate to such Traffic Council the powers which it alone possessed, and also held that the rules promulgated by the Traffic Council could not be held authorized, for the reason that there was no ordinance defining the territory in which such rules might promulgate, or defining the character of streets or crossings upon which its regulations might be put in operation, and that the Board of Aldermen alone could perform such duties.

It is my duty to follow the law as declared by the Supreme Court of Missouri. I can appreciate that our articles have been in the interest of safety, but since they are as mentioned, based upon mistake, I trust that you will immediately correct your errors as printed by you.

There is now being prepared by the City Counselor an ordinance which will meet the situation, but in the meantime pedestrians are not being left without protection. The statutes of Missouri and the ordinances of our city require that a vehicle when in operation, shall be kept as near to the right as practicable. The Police Department can therefore arrest persons who fail to keep as near the right-hand curb as practicable for violating the mentioned law, and in prosecuting such charge the question of safety zones is not at issue.

because the vehicle must be kept to the right at all places and has no concern with the location of safety zones. Also, it would appear that one driving a vehicle through a safety zone while a pedestrian is standing in or approaching the same might be properly prosecuted for careless driving. But a court cannot go beyond the charges contained in an information. Accordingly when a defendant is charged with driving through a safety zone I can consider that charge alone and cannot under the law consider the question of whether or not he is guilty of failure to keep to the right-hand curb, or of careless driving. To enable prosecution under either of the two mentioned charges, a defendant must be charged specifically with the same. Trusting that you will print this letter so that the confusion on the part of the public can be cleared, I am, respectfully yours,

HYMAN G. STEIN,
Provisional Judge, City Court No. 1.

A house warming will be held Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock at the St. Dominic Italian Orphan Home, on Partridge avenue, north of the Olive Street road, in St. Louis County. Did your child have a Sick Spell this Winter

A sick spell is always bad enough, but its after-effects are often worse. If your child has been sick recently, now is the dangerous time. Resistance is at a low ebb, vitality is lowered, and your child does not have the reserve strength to resist infection.

For over 75 years Father John's Medicine has proved its worth as a body builder, as a tonic for weak, run-down children, as an aid to healthy vigor.

It supplies in easily assimilated form the food elements your child vitally needs and which are missing from so many modern diets. Pale, half-sick children pick right up.

Colds become few and far between. Weight is added, strength returns. Father John's Medicine is a combination of valuable ingredients, none of which could harm an infant. It contains no alcohol or drugs, because of its scientific preparation, brings to your child all the benefits of cod liver oil in its finest form, is rich in vitamins. Children take it amazingly. And they love to take it, because it tastes good. If your child has been sick recently, if it catches cold easily, if it runs down, underweight, try Father John's Medicine. Over 134 hospitals and institutions use it regularly. Countless mothers are never without it. Just ask your druggist.

TELLS WHY CITY CAN'T PAY FOR ALL OF GRAVOIS WORK

Muench, in Reply to Protests, Says Bond Issue Made No Provision for such a Plan.

WOULD EXHAUST $8,650,000 FUND

Points Out 33 Other Widening Proposals Would Be Tied Up, Efforts of Seven Years Futile.

City Counselor Muench today declared it would be futile to repeal the ordinance authorizing the assessment of benefits for widening Gravois avenue, from Grand boulevard to Eighteenth street, so as to pass a new ordinance placing the entire cost on bond issue funds, as has been suggested by some of the 24,000 property owners in the benefit district.

Muench's statement is contained in a letter responding to a communication to Mayor Miller from Otis L. Clonts, attorney for the Gravois Improvement District Protest Association, in which the repeal of the existing ordinance is suggested.

The counselor pointed out that the $8,650,000 provided under the $37,000,000 bond issue for street opening and widening constitutes the city's share of the cost only, and that nowhere in the provisions of the bond issue is the statement that the entire cost of street projects would be paid from bond issue funds.

Cost of improving Market street, and either Olive street or Gravois avenue, would exhaust the $8,650,000 if paid entirely from bond issue money, Muench added, leaving no funds for 33 other street projects mentioned in the bond issue.

The letter also points out that the assessment of benefits is prescribed by city charter, and that the Gravois assessment was made in a regular manner by a commission appointed by the Circuit Court. Muench states that his opinion that the Gravois protest contains elements of a party issue has been confirmed, and he asks what influence Democratic officeholders could bring to bear on the appointment of a condemnation committee.

In defense of the payment of 5 per cent to Stifel-Nichols & Co. for discounting benefit judgments, Muench says the brokerage house has been put to considerable expense in supplying the ready funds to the city in order to hasten the improvement, and is entitled to a commission for service.

"Even if there was justification for setting aside all that has been done during the last seven years, the action would be futile because the procedure in this case complies with the letter of the City Charter, and the bond issue provisions," Muench states in conclusion.

Muench, in his letter, offers the co-operation of his office to the problems of taxpayers, and states that the City Law Department has done its best to expedite the legal details in connection with the widening.

STATE SUPREME COURT RULING IGNORED IN INSURANCE SUIT

U. S. Judge Faris, With Explanation, Directs $5000 Verdict for Company.

In directing a verdict for the Travelers' Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn., defendant in a suit over payment of a $5000 policy, Federal Judge Faris today let it be known he was acting contrary to a decision of the State Supreme Court in an identical case.

The suit was brought by Mrs. Stella W. Shields, New York, widow of Julian S. Shields, former military manufacturer of St. Louis. A policy was taken out by Shields, July 16, 1919, and ran for 10 years. Shields died Aug. 11, 1929, and ran for 10 years. Shields died Aug. 11, 1929, less than a month after the date of expiration.

The plaintiff exhibited a receipt dated Sept. 11, 1919, showing payment of the premium, and her counsel called attention to a clause in the contract which states the policy does not go into effect until payment of the premium. The company introduced testimony, however, showing the premium was paid before that date by Wertheimer & Wertheimer, insurance brokers, who, in turn, charged Shields. The court held the insurance began and ended on the dates specified in the policy.

In explanation of his instruction to the jury, Judge Faris said that, while compelled to follow State laws, as defined by statute, he was not bound by decisions of the State Supreme Court where no statute was involved. Attorneys for Mrs. Shields indicated they would take the case to the State Supreme Court.

Hiccoughs for 10 Days.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 19.—Joseph Baskin, who has hiccoughed for 10 days in a receiving hospital, with his condition but slightly improved after a day and two nights of hospital treatment. Baskin recovered temporarily from several attacks of the illness, his wife said, but collapsed Monday night. Numerous physicians high in the profession here have given their assistance.

Guide Killed by State Policeman.

CADILLAC, Mich., Nov. 19.—Wake Sherwood, 60-year-old veteran North woods guide, died in a hospital here today of a bullet wound inflicted by Gerald Harris, State policeman, last Saturday. Harris says that Sherwood failed to stop the automobile in which he was carrying a party of hunters when ordered to do so by officers who wished to examine the game killed. Harris followed in a commandeered car, jumped to Sherwood's running board, was shaken off and fired from the ground. Harris reported there were two slain does in the car. Shooting of does is prohibited.

Slightly Fewer Idle in England.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Unemployment for the week ended Nov. 10, showed a decrease, for the first time in seven weeks. The figures were 2,361,177 unemployed, or 13.50 per cent, less than the preceding week. There was an increase, however, of 1,002,000 in the number of those who were 643 over the figures of the same week, last year.

Prominent Industrials Also Join Advance in Afternoon — Market Virtually Regains Ground Lost in Early Week Setback.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The stock market virtually regained the ground lost in the setback at the beginning of the week today. Trading was in moderate volume, transactions aggregating 2,500,000
shares, but the list developed considerable buoyance during the afternoon and there were many net gains of 2 to 4 points. The ability of the market to turn upward yesterday, and the equanimity with which it received the news of a commission house failure today,
sent bears into full retreat.

The advance became pronounced
in the motor and motor accessory shares and some of the rails during the morning, and switched into the utilities and prominent industrials during the afternoon. Shares closing 2 to 4 points higher included American Telephone, North American, American Can, American Power & Light, Hudson Motor, Consolidated Gas, Bethlehem, Baltimore & Ohio, Westinghouse, Air Reduction, United Aircraft, Allied Chemical, Southern Railway,
Southern Pacific and Atchafalpa.
Union Pacific gained 4. Ingersoll Rand shot up 10. United States Steel, General Electric and Studebaker gained about 1 1/2. An early loss of 5 in Case was regained.
Bulova Watch lost about 7.

Wheat Closes Higher.
The stability of the leading commodity markets tended to promote the better feeling in the stock market. Wheat futures, old contracts, were well taken in the Chicago market, and closed 1/4 to 3/4 of a cent a bushel higher. Wheat was helped by reports of larger export sales. Corn was in good demand, and closed 1/4 to 1/2 cents higher.
The weekly weather report was regarded as a bullish influence on this grain. Cotton closed about steady in the New York market, unchanged to 35 cents a bale higher.

Foreign exchange rates were steady to firm. The Spanish peseta, which had dropped about 1/2 cents
in the past few days, reflecting news of labor troubles in Spain, recovered .1 of a cent. The Canadian dollar continued to climb,
coming close to the gold point as it reached a premium of nearly 1 1/2 of a cent. The leading European rates were firmer, with slight advances in sterling, French francs
and German marks.

Motor Issues Improve.
The improved tone in the motor and accessory shares, after their long period of unpopularity, was a notable development. While motor manufacturing has made uneven progress of late, there has been a definite pickup in the aggregate, and with dealer inventories reduced in most cases, there is a tendency to regard the prospects for 1931 models with restrained optimism. Studebaker reported Oct.
month sales actually above that of 1929. Distribution of about $4-400,000 of the cash surplus of Queen and Crescent as an extra dividend helped the rail issues. The bulk of this distribution will be to Southern Railway, which controls Queen and Crescent, but Baltimore & Ohio also owns about one-third interest, and will share accordingly.

Steel Industry Situation.
A weekly steel trade review reported but a slight decrease in ingot
output from the preceding week.
Iron Age estimated operations at 43 per cent of capacity, against 44
in the preceding week and 48 two weeks ago. This publication pointed out that inquiries for about 50-000 freight cars, requiring 700,000
tons of steel are expected shortly, while little, if any, improvement in the steel industry is expected until after the turn of the year.
Larger taking by railroad and auto-

FEDERAL DRY AGENTS USE

BOY TO MAKE PURCHASE

Testify They "Borrowed" Lad From Probation Officers to Trap Woman.

By the Associated Press. MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 19.—Two Federal prohibition agents, Peter Whisnant and Ivan Kantcheff, yesterday testified they used a 3-year-old boy to purchase liquor from Mrs. Eleanor Paulino, on trial for violation of the dry laws. The agents said they "borrowed" the boy from probation officers, gave him marked money, and coached him on how to make a "buy" from Mrs. Paulino. They said he returned with liquor and pointed out Mrs. Paulino as the seller as the agents raided her home.

WASHINGTON STATE NAMED TO PLAY IN TOURNAMENT OF ROSES GAME

NORTHWESTERN OR ALABAMA TO MEET COUGARS ON THE COAST

By the Associated Press.
PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 19.—The institution which sent a mighty football aggregation here Nov. 19, 1916, to inaugurate the annual Tournament of Roses football classic with a Western triumph—Washington State College—again will carry the honors of the far West into the intercollegiate fray Jan. 1.

Following precedent, Hal C. Reynolds, president of the tournament association, in making announcement of the selection last night, left the matter of choosing an opponent in the hands of the Washington State officials. While no official action is expected immediately, it was understood here that either Northwestern or Alabama would get the call to oppose the Cougars should they finish the season undefeated. Washington State won the Pacific Coast championship last Saturday by defeating Washington, 3 to 0, completing an undefeated season in the conference. Among the Cougars' major victories was the 7 to 6 triumph over the University of Southern California.

Northwestern faces two obstacles before being in a position to accept a possible invitation. The Wildcats must defeat Notre Dame Saturday and then obtain sanction from the Big Ten conference. Not since Ohio State lost to California in the Rose Tournament game of 1921, 28 to 0, has this permission been available.

Alabama needs only to defeat Georgia, Thanksgiving day, to clear all obstacles to a third appearance of the Crimson Tide in the annual classic. The Southerners defeated Washington, 20 to 19, in 1926, and tied Stanford, 7 to 7, the year following.

Since the initial Western triumph in 1916 when Washington State defeated Brown, 14 to 0, in a downpour of rain, the teams from the Pacific slopes have held the edge in games won over intercollegiate opponents. During intervening years six triumphs have been collected by the West, against four defeats. Three of the contests ended in ties. Of the defeats, two were administered by Southern aggressions. This does not account for two service team games during the World War.

CHAMINADE TO OPEN ITS BASKETBALL SEASON WITH HANCOCK DEC. 18

After a few preliminary practices this week, the Chaminaide High basketball team will get down to real work next week in order to prepare for the first game of the season with Hancock, Dec. 18. Coach Granger will not have a single letterman back.

This season will be an off-season for Chaminaide in every sport. Last Friday it closed its football season losing to Ritenour, 18-7, to finish with the low percentage of .142. In the games Chaminaide managed to score only 26 points to its opponents' 166.

The outlook for football next year, however, is much better. Lavin, Chaminaide's quarterback, led his team in scoring. He scored a touchdown in the Crystal City and Ritenour games and made an extra-point in the De Soto contest for 13 points. Singler and Thompson each had one touchdown to their credit, while Smith scored an extra-point.

The Chaminaide basketball schedule: Dec. 18, Hancock at Chaminaide; Jan. 10, Chaminaide at Ritenour; Jan. 13, Chaminaide at St. Charles; Jan. 14, Alumni at Chaminaide; Jan. 20, Chaminaide at Country Day School; Jan. 27, Chaminaide at Hancock; Jan. 28, St. Charles at Chaminaide; Jan. 30, John Burroughs at Chaminaide; Feb. 3, Country Day at Chaminaide; Feb. 6, Hancock at Chaminaide; Feb. 13, Ritenour at Chaminaide; Feb. 17, Chaminaide at John Burroughs; Feb. 20, Ranken at Chaminaide; Feb. 24, Crystal City at Chaminaide.

MANY APPLICATIONS FOR MANAGERSHIP OF JOPLIN BALL CLUB

JOPLIN, Mo., Nov. 19.—Since the announcement yesterday that James Cotton, formerly of the Western Association Club, had resigned as manager of the local Western Association Club to become assistant manager of the Kansas City Blues, the local office has received many applications for the vacant managerial berth. The latest to be received is from Otto Butler, last year with the Muskogee, Okla. club. Butler is a veteran of many seasons.

THREE BASKET STARS TRADED IN PRO LEAGUE

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—A three-cornered deal involving Pat Herlihy of Brooklyn, Al Kellest of Paterson and Honey Russell of Chicago was announced last night by President J. J. O'Brien of the American Professional Basketball League.

By the deal, Paterson traded Kellest to Brooklyn for Herlihy in an exchange of centers. The New Jersey club also giving a large cash payment to the Vitellians. Paterson then traded Herlihy to Chicago for Russell, one of the greatest guards in the league.

Parks to Fight Freddy Willen On Benefit Card

Joey Parks, flashy featherweight protegee of the veteran Kid Bandy and Western A. U. senior champion of his division, will renew hostilities with Freddy Willen, fast-stepping South Side rival, in a special bout announced today by Matchmaker Willie Miller as one of the premier attractions on the benefit boxing program to be held next Tuesday night at the South Broadway A. C.

Willen suffered his first setback in more than 20 amateur tournament engagements, when Parks rallied strongly in the final minute of their sniping debate, three weeks ago to win the decision by a slim margin. The South Side's list of conquests before his defeat by Parks included decisions over such classy local rivals as Tim McDermott, Claude French, Peter Sarno, Randy Melish, Harry Greb and Eddie Vessels.

Tourney officials plan to schedule four more bouts of the intercollegiate variety for the feature portion of next week's card. They are seeking a heavyweight opponent for Les Schulte, National A. A. U. junior titleholder; a bantam foe for Merl Thompson, Tower A. C. star, and a welterweight to meet Dick Kogel of Sherman Park Community Center.

The entire receipts of Tuesday night's show, after the cost of trophies is deducted, will be turned over to the Police Captains of the Second and Third Districts to be used in providing relief for destitute families. Tourney officials are also receiving contributions of fuel, provisions and cash, which they will distribute through police channels.

STOCKHAM POST MOVES TO BRING MALLOY BACK

By W. J. McGoogan.

It seems to be about as difficult for the Fred W. Stockham Post of the American Legion to retain a matchmaker as it is for a light-weight champion to hold his title. First Mike Malloy came a cropper after starting the season with bright prospects. Then the post made a deal with Joe Broderick to act as its matchmaker. But Joe couldn't guarantee the post against financial troubles and his show which was scheduled for the Coliseum Friday night was called off when the post notified Seneca Taylor, State Boxing Commissioner, that it would withdraw from the promotion.

So today Charley Downs, chairman of the Stockham Boxing Committee, is casting about for another matchmaker and it may be that Malloy will pull it off.

Broderick had a pretty good card lined up with Eddie Wolfe and Eddie Anderson in the main event, but Taylor had told Broderick that he would have to clean up all debts left over from Joe's unsuccessful attempt to promote a bout between Maxie Robinson and Jimmy Slattery here during the world series. Broderick failed to fulfill Taylor's requirements. When the Stockham Post withdrew from Friday's affair, Taylor stepped in and stopped the show.

All of which makes it better for Jack Tippett's card at the Gayety Theater Monday night. If things continue as they have, Jack's little shows will be all the boxing available for the fans here this winter.

Tough on Promoters.

Under the boxing law it is very difficult for a promoter to make money. He is bound to pay 15 per cent out of the receipts: Five per cent to the State, 5 per cent to the city and 5 per cent to the "fraternal, benevolent or religious" organization under whose name he obtains a promoter's license. Then he has the boxers to pay and they want plenty. And after he gets through with all of that, he has only printing bills, rent, and numerous other incidentals to worry about. After he gets everything paid he is fortunate to have anything left for himself.

Until the lawyers and the boxers see that promoters are essential to the welfare of the game and give them a chance to make money, it will be difficult to put boxing on a sound basis here.

Copolos Praises Westhus' Game

St. Louis is not losing ground in the three-cushion billiard world, it would seem from the result of Gus Copulos' exhibition series against three local players. The St. Louis star, rated one of the greatest professionals in the game, was defeated in a 100-point match by Bud Westhus on Monday; won a 50-point match from M. Diekmeyer, and lost a similar game to Gene Deardorff last night.

Copolos was obviously off his game, due to illness. His best run was 9, but he was not hitting the ball with his accustomed accuracy.

Speaking of Westhus, the newest star in the St. Louis firmament, Copulos predicted a bright future for the youngster. He has the sort of stroke that will make him a three-cushion billiard. He is hitting the first object ball as clean and accurately as any player can. My only criticism of his game is that he pounds the cue too hard. But we all did that when we were young at the game, and I'm sure he will overcome that fault. In three-cushions, when one of the object balls is in the corner we consider that it is in good position and we try to leave it there. Bud is hitting the balls so hard that he often loses the advantage of this position. But I'm sure he'll soon play a softer game.

Westhus weighed in close to 200 pounds and hitting balls hard is the easiest thing he does. It is natural for him to put power into his stroke. His problem now is to tone down.

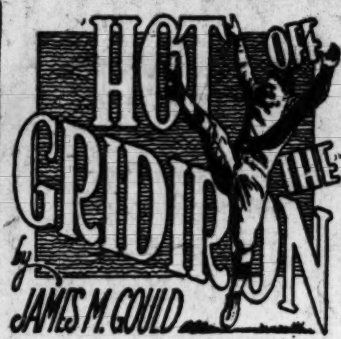

EAST ST. LOUIS STAR MAY PLAY IN GAME WITH GRANITE CITY

With all his regular in good shape, Coach Byron Bosarth will hold his last scrimmage this evening at Granite City High in preparation for the coming title contest at East St. Louis.

"The Warriors will play as the favorites, as the two star backfield men, Pat Rich and Roy Collin, are back at their old places and will fill the only weak spot in the Granite City team. The line will be one of the most powerful in the conference."

If Granite City loses it would still have more than an even chance at the title. The East St. Louis tied for the lead, has yet to play the strong Belleville crew. The Warriors have only to play Edwardsville.

There is a possibility that Coach Jack Nolen, of East Side, will use his injured quarterback, Paddy Warfield.

Secret Practice.

ALONG about this time every football season comes the secret practice. The worth of this practice has often been discussed but not yet determined. Just how much of the real strategy being developed on the field can be discerned by the eye and retained in the brain of the ordinary observer of things football from the sidelines, is rather a question. Of course, there are football scouts with "cameras" who can report back to their coaches with an almost photographic report of the enemy tactics but these men either have wonderful eyes or they have learned through years of special training. Bob Hanegan, former St. Louis University star, was perhaps, one of the best scouts ever developed in local college circles.

So today Charley Downs, chairman of the Stockham Boxing Committee, is casting about for another matchmaker and it may be that Malloy will pull it off.

Broderick had a pretty good card lined up with Eddie Wolfe and Eddie Anderson in the main event, but Taylor had told Broderick that he would have to clean up all debts left over from Joe's unsuccessful attempt to promote a bout between Maxie Robinson and Jimmy Slattery here during the world series. Broderick failed to fulfill Taylor's requirements. When the Stockham Post withdrew from Friday's affair, Taylor stepped in and stopped the show.

Some Great Quarters.

WHEN the choosers of All-America teams get ready to go soon after the present football season is over, they will have to give plenty of thought to the quarterback situation. Only in the year or so has the so-called "new" open game produced great field generals. Some of those who select worthy of choice—the poor selectors can take only one—are Carideo of Notre Dame, Booth of Yale, Wood of Harvard, Baker of Pittsburg, Dodd of Tennessee, Hanley of Northwestern, Newman of Michigan and Mohler of Southern California. And, every section will have a flock more to offer as candidates. But, the above group, is fairly representative of the best signal-callers on the 1930 field.

On the Offensive.

THIS present season has been marked by some wonderful development of defensive football play and yet there are several teams whose offense, for the most part, is lacking. Take, for instance, Notre Dame and Northwestern in the Middle West, Southern California on the Pacific Coast and Alabama in the South. But, the defense, or what might be called the "offensive-defense," is a great part of all four teams mentioned above are playing behind lines of more than ordinary steadiness and power.

KWARIANI-GROBMEIER MATCH IS ADDED TO COLISEUM MAT CARD

Kola Kwariani, Russian heavyweight grappler, who defeated Marshall Blackstock of Atlanta, in the curtain-raiser to the London-Dusek tussle last week, will match grips with Fred Grobmeier of Harlan, Ia., in the second preliminary of the Coliseum wrestling show featuring Milo Steinborn and Dick Davisport next Wednesday night. The bout was announced today by Promoter Tom Packs, will be limited to 30 minutes.

With Jack Washburn of Los Angeles, and George Zaharias, Colorado Greek heavyweight, meeting in a return engagement billed as the semi-windup, Packs needs but one more attraction to complete his program of four events for next week's show.

ROBINS SCHEDULE FIVE GAMES IN HAVANA

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The Brooklyn Robins will play a five-game exhibition series in Havana, next spring, starting March 21. Three of the games probably will be between two teams picked from the Brooklyn system. In the other two contests the Dodgers will oppose a Cuban outfit.

BILLIKENS PLAN MORE SEATS FOR GAME WITH BEARS

By Dent McKimming

In sending his first string team through signal practice, yesterday, Coach Walsh selected the following players:

Ends—McGowan and Kennedy. Tackles—Bockrath and Joseph. Guards—Tierney and Fodelwitz. Center—Muehlert. Quarterback—McKinney. Halfbacks—Stephan and Kinmeil. Fullback—Salinski.

And, barring plagues and earthquakes, that's the way the St. Louis University team will line up against Washington U., a week from tomorrow.

Two of these regulars played in bandages. Salinski has a broken finger on his left hand and was wearing a splint, but he was evidently not greatly handicapped in handling the ball. Stephan's trick ankle decided to behave and he was stepping around the gridiron like a boy eager for the start of the game.

Schumacher Back on Squad. If there are any changes they are likely to be in the line, not the backfield. Such good backs as McGowan, Pike, Gazelle and LaPrestra were well wrapped but he was evidently not greatly handicapped in handling the ball. Stephan's trick ankle decided to behave and he was stepping around the gridiron like a boy eager for the start of the game.

Rockne and His Three Hurdles.

ROCKNE and his Notre Dame team still have three hurdles to clear before the end of the season. Probably, if Notre Dame is "right" against Northwestern, Army and Southern California, Notre Dame will win but the "fraternal, benevolent or religious" organization under whose name he obtains a promoter's license. Then he has the boxers to pay and they want plenty. And after he gets through with all of that, he has only printing bills, rent, and numerous other incidentals to worry about. After he gets everything paid he is fortunate to have anything left for himself.

Since Rockne has been head coach at Notre Dame his teams have won 101 games—and lost but 17. This gives "Rock" a percentage of .855.

Duluth Wins in Opening Hockey League Contest

By the Associated Press.

DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 19.—A goal by Laurie Scott, Duluth center, shortly after the third period opened, gave the Duluth Hornets a 1 to 0 victory over the Chicago Shamrocks in the opening game of the American Hockey League season last night.

Scott's shot, fired after he grabbed a pass from Whyte, broke a scoreless 40-minute period of play which was featured by speedy play in the first period. The Shamrock outplayed the Hornets the first period, but Duluth had the upper hand in the final session, with the Chicago team making desperate efforts to tie the score.

The play of Dennemy, Brydson and Clayton featured the Shamrock's attack, while Scott, Whyte and Green were outstanding for the winners.

STEALS TICKETS TO NOTRE DAME-WILDCAT GAME; IGNORES $50

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 19.—James A. Thimios, owner of a food shop, loves football. He was the proud owner of two tickets to the Northwestern-Notre Dame game to be played here Saturday. For weeks he kept them locked up securely, he thought, in his cash register, but every now and then when a favored customer came in he would take them out for display purposes only.

Last night a policeman walking by the shop an hour after Thimios had locked up, noticed that the front door had been broken open. Nothing was disturbed except the cash register, the drawer of which was open with $50 lying there in plain sight.

But the tickets were gone.

NO CHARITY GAME FOR MURPHYSBORO AND JOHNSTON CITY

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill., Nov. 19.—There will be no post-season game between the undefeated Murphysboro and Johnston City football teams this season, it was announced yesterday after a committee of Johnston City business men, representing the local Salvation Army benefit drive, made a trip to Murphysboro to try to schedule a charity game. The two schools could not agree on the division of the receipts of the proposed game.

My 50 Years in Baseball

Mack Says "I Lost Myself Completely" in Joy of Winning First World Series in 16 Years.

WHEN Bing Miller made his whopping hit and Simmons raced across the plate with the run that made us kings of the diamond, the scene was one that bankrupted adjectives.

Hundreds of hats were sailed on the field, spectators rushed out on the field and grasped Athletic heroes. Mayor Mackey forgot his dignity again and leaped out of his seat next to President Hoover to congratulate Miller and lead him in triumph to the bench.

Cops rushed out to beat back the crowd and save Athletic players from being harmed by over-enthusiastic spectators.

A radio was rigged up on our bench and I promised to speak at the end of the game but I forgot all about it and rushed into our clubhouse.

Here for the first time in the season, I lost myself completely, hugging each player and jiggling around the floor in joy. For a man of my years I must have made a pretty spectacle but I couldn't help it.

I felt as I did when I hit my first homer in East Brookfield when I was in my teens.

I left the clubhouse in a quarter of an hour and had to fight my way to my office, where a large number of friends had assembled and where I was congratulated on all sides.

It was a long time before I recovered poise, I can tell you. This had been my sixth time in world's series competition and I believe that those Saturday and Monday games were the most pulsing and dramatic ever seen in the great October classic.

Not a Walkover. WHILE the Athletics won four games out of five, these cold figures might suggest that it was a walk-over for us and that

Connie Intends Managing Until He Reaches 70

IN this chapter of his life story, Connie Mack says that he felt like stepping down from the active management of the Athletics. He recalls that he had some critics who thought his advancing years made the task too difficult for him but he adds, "It was only a passing thought that came to me in a particularly black moment and then vanished."

It is Connie's life ambition to remain as active manager of his team until he reaches the age of 70.

"After that," he says, "I may decide to do more golfing."

We often hear of the breaks of the game and I want to say here if there is such a thing, we had our share in that world's series.

The Cubs were handled by Joe McCarthy, a manager to his finger tips, who knows baseball from the grass roots and moreover possesses rare qualities of leadership.

McCarthy is a native of Philadelphia and was born and reared not far from my home. When he was first appointed manager of the Cubs in 1926, friends in Philadelphia gave him a quiet kick and pressed the opinion that he would be a success in the majors and was up to stay.

My prediction turned out correct and just four seasons after this little figure in the papers at the time, because it was kept quiet, McCarthy and I were to meet in a struggle for the highest honors in baseball.

After being out of the running since 1914, when we won our previous championship, it was a source of great personal pride to me to be back in the championship glare again. In my years in the American League since its inception as a major circuit in 1901, I have mixed the bitter with the sweet.

Quite a Record.
In 1902, 1905, 1910, 1911, 1912, 1914 and 1923, I won pennants. In 1910, 1911, 1913 and 1923 followed with world's series triumphs.

After 1914, many lean years followed, but I was finally rewarded with the Athletics fighting to the top again. Discouragements in these dark days of reconstruction were many, but success finally came.

There was many a time when I was tempted to step down, but it was only a swiftly passing thought that came to me at a particularly black moment and then vanished.

I loved baseball too much and was too willing to accept the fortunes of the future to do anything but carry on.

Then I looked back in my career and saw that every setback that I had experienced was always followed by a full measure of success. It was not time to quit.

While I had many friends who were loyal to me and believed in me, there were some who thought advancing years made the task too difficult for me and that the job should be placed in younger hands.

I am the senior manager of the major leagues, but the point that always has kept me young is the consciousness that all my players still believe in me.

It is my life ambition to remain as the active leader of my team, with the same responsibilities and duties that I have borne since the club was established in 1901, until I reach the age of 70.

After that I may decide to do more golfing.

BROWNS

NEWCOMER HIT 111 IN 1930; FOUR PLAYERS GO TO BREWERS

Prior, business manager of Browns, announced this morning the Browns had obtained Russell Young from the Cubs.

In return, the Browns
released four players to the Cubs. They are Catcher
Hugle, Pitcher
Hawley and Outfielder Metzler.

Young has been with Milwaukee
several years, but did not develop into a major league prospect last season. In 1929 games he batted with 25 doubles, six home runs and drove in several runs.

Hugle and Metzler are veterans and have been with the Browns since 1928. Metzler was obtained from the Cubs for the waiver price
of $500.

Hawley was obtained from the Cubs in exchange for Pitcher McGowan. He looked bright in the spring, but didn't do much during the championship season.

He did not expect any major league action, but he was glad to have a chance to play in the big league. According to McGowan, the Cardinals traded him to the Browns
because they needed a left-hander
in the bullpen.

Young, in addition to being a baseball star, was quite a ball player.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH OBTAIN RUSSELL YOUNG, CATCHER, FROM MILWAUKEE CLUB

NED BRANT AT CARTER

WASHINGTON U. FRESHMEN WORK FOR "BIG GAME"

By James M. Gould.
Just for the moment the Washington U. freshmen have pushed the varsity out of the immediate picture. For, the youngsters have their "big game," scheduled with the first-year footballers of St.
Louis U., next Saturday, while the varsity must come until Thanksgiving.

Coach Johnny Davis has a likely looking squad with which to oppose the young Billikens. A year ago, the St. Louis freshmen eleven won over their Washington friends
by a 47-0 score and that rout ranked in the breasts of the newcomers at the Hilltop. "Revenge"
is their slogan and they are working hard in the hope of getting it.

Average 174 Pounds.
The Freshman Bears will average 176 pounds—quite a sizeable average. But, the weight of one linebacker, Hemmick, a tackle who weighs just a mere 270, brings the team-mark up to the 176 mark.

Hemmick is the only 200-pounder on Coach Davis' squad. Steinecker,
a big and agile center who played football at Waite High School, Toledo, O., a famous football prep school, is next heaviest with his 195.

Present plans call for the following youngsters to start against the Billikens, Saturday. Huston and Whittier will be at the ends with Venable and big Hemmick at tackle. Smith and Pfeiffer occupy the guard positions on either side of Center Steinecker. Gettlin, a 145-pounder, is quarterback, with Jones and Karchmer at halves and Grant at fullback.

The freshman offense is not patterned after that of the Varsity Bears. It is an offshoot of the double wing-back system and provides opportunity for either a running or a passing attack. It is believed, however, that Coach Davis favors running over passing. All of which is telling no secrets inasmuch as the coaches of the two freshman squads
have promised to exchange attack
plans, a sufficient time before Saturday's game to allow each to familiarize the players with the offense planned by the other.

Varsity Goes Easily.
As for the Varsity Bears, they are taking things rather easily but only for the first of the week.
Toward the end they will have some scrimmage to insure them of the hardships expected Thanksgiving day.

One thing may be said of Washington's varsity. It is "set" for the fight with the Billikens. The coaches feel the time for experimenting is over and therefore have determined on their starting lineup. In it Captain Coover and Friedman will be at the ends, Wheeler or Butz and Senn at the tackles, Vandover and Watson at the guards and Higgins
at center. The backfield will consist of Tyrell, Sauselle, Hornsby and the two Millers—Dave and Harvey alternating.

Young Bob Higgins has fairly won
the center assignment with his work against Grinnell and Crelighton. Dave Miller, a not-too-good ball-carrier is an excellent defense
man and therefore has first call over his namesake as starting back.

Westhus Opposes Dave Jacobs in Cue Title Match

Bud Westhus, St. Louis' representative in the national threecushion billiard championship tournament, is in Decatur today ready to start his 150-point inter-sectional match with David Jacobs of St.
Louis, who won the division title tournament at Terre Haute. The winner of the match will become eligible for the championship tourney at Chicago in January.

Whether Westhus or Jacobs wins
at Decatur, St. Louis will be represented in the national tourney by contestants, including Johnny Layton, world champion, and Allen Hall.

Goodman Beats Delmont.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 19.—

weight, outpointed Danny Delmont
of Chicago, in a hard 10-round boxing contest here last night. The men scored a double knockdown in the second round, and a minute later Goodman dropped Delmont for the count of nine.

A Story of College Athletics

Herbst Kayoes Norman Hoke in Overland Bout

Joe Herbst Jr., of the Olympian
A. C., holder of the Mississippi Valley welterweight boxing title, proved too good for Norman Hoke of the Overland A. C. in one of the special bouts on the Overland
A. C. fight card in Overland, last night. Herbst put over a knockout in the first round after a short period of battling that had the spectators on their feet.

In the final bout, Harold Hamilton, the tall Texan dug up a few months ago by George Wilsman, stopped a boy named Walter Ur-bans in the first round. Hamilton's reach proved an obstacle that Ur-bans couldn't surmount.

The results:
Elmer Howell, Olympian A. C., defeated Russell Derby, Sherman Park C. C., officials' decision, four rounds, weight, 112.
Charles Glardi, Overland A. C., defeated Jack Rymer, Tower A. C., judges' decision, four rounds, weight, 112.
Irish Bay, Olympian A. C., defeated Roy Buss, South Broadway A. C., knockout, second round, weight, 135.
Russell Kinder, Police Gymnasium, defeated Merl Gilbert, Olympian A. C., decision, three rounds, weight, 120.
Elihu Duro, Croatian A. C., defeated Bill Trout, Olympian A. C., judges'

THE REAL BEGINNING of a beautiful complexion is perfect health. Without that, color soon fades.

FRESH YEAST, added to your diet (3 cakes daily, before or between meals) helps lay the foundation for real health, renewed appetite, restored energy, greater reserve . . . and the result is better skin.

Complexion Color that Doesn't Come in JARS!

PUT away that lipstick! Go easy on the powder and rouge! Here's the way to lay the foundation for healthy color that no amount of cosmetics can match!

A good skin begins with a healthy body.

Unfortunately, our bodies were not built for our present-day modes of living. And most of us, as a result, suffer from an age-old ailment . . . Intestinal Fatigue . . . that shows its marks first of all in bad skin.

Not only that, we lack vitality. Energy is quickly spent. We are susceptible to colds, to headaches. 90% of our common ailments come from one condition . . . Intestinal Fatigue.

Here's the way to radiant health that puts the rouge-pot to shame for color! Just a corrective treatment for that age-old evil . . . Intestinal Fatigue!

Now most of us are too impatient really to correct this trouble. We turn to cathartics, to laxatives, to measures that are often violent and always only temporary.

Doctors, including European specialists, are emphatic in warning against this method. They recommend, instead, a simple food routine that acts naturally and easily, restoring bodily function to normal once again.

This food is fresh yeast . . . ordinary Fleischmann's Yeast. Eaten regularly, it serves the highly useful purpose of regulating the intestines, of cleaning and toning up the very region where intestinal fatigue gets in its bad work.

And once yeast has been given a chance to clear away poison-breeding accumulations, color returns, the skin clears, pimples and boils disappear. We feel better in many ways . . . because we again enjoy the true health without which a good natural complexion is impossible.

If you really want a good complexion, make the right sort of beginning with Fleischmann's Yeast. Eat it regularly . . . three cakes a day, in water, milk, fruit juices, milk drinks or plain

Remember, you can buy Fleischmann's Yeast anywhere . . . at grocers', restaurants, soda fountains. Buy a supply today . . . and begin eating it regularly. Each cake is rich in three vitamins indispensable to health—vitamins B and G and the "sunshine" vitamin D.

Not a "Cure-all" . . . Fleischmann's Yeast is a health food thousands eat three times a day

Remember, it's important to ask your grocer for Fleischmann's fresh Yeast (with the yellow label) : : : the only yeast that contains the Sunshine Vitamin D! Every cake is "irradiated" to give it this added element so important for sun-starved indoor workers. It is rich in Vitamins B and G, too.

We recommend...

ANTI-U. S. EDITOR NEW PRESIDENT OF HAITI

Stenio Vincent Elected by National Assembly to Succeed
 Eugene Roy.

By the Associated Press.
 PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Nov. 19.—Stenio Vincent, opponent of American occupation, was elected President of Haiti by the National Assembly yesterday to succeed Eugene Roy.

Mix This at Home For Bad Coughs Due To Colds

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for distressing coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.
 Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle;
 then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for incipient bronchial coughs and other severe coughs due to colds.
 Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

prising, for the strongest candidates
 previously were Constantin Mayard
 and Seymour Pradel, but the fight was principally between Vincent and Pradel, with the former chosen on the fourth ballot.

Vincent, editor of the anti-American Haiti Journal, is 48 years old and a member of the extreme opposition. He is a lawyer, now serving as president of the Bar Association of Port-Au-Prince, formerly was in the diplomatic service in Paris and Berlin, at one time was president of the Senate and again
 was Minister of the Interior.

He is the first regularly elected President of Haiti since American intervention in 1916. During that period the Presidents, including Louis Borno and his successor, Eugene Roy, were chosen by a council of state appointed by the President holding office at the time of the election. Thus Borno received a second term from his own Council.

The Council, consisting of 21
 members, has performed the functions of Parliament during the American occupation, being distinct from the President's Cabinet of Ministers.

When the Borno Government was overthrown last spring, Roy was chosen temporary President until a national assembly could be elected to select a permanent President.
 He resigned this week and the balloting on his successor followed.

American marines were landed in Haiti in 1915 a few hours after President Vilbrun Guillaume Sam
 had been assassinated by a mob
 and the country sanctioned the occupation in 1916 by treaty. Since that time and until last week the United States had been represented
 in Haiti by a high commissioner.
 The Hoover commission which went to Haiti last February recommended that the office be terminated and normal diplomatic representation
 be established.

Hence, Brigadier-General John
 H. Russell of the United States
 Marine Corps left the high com-missionership last week and the new United States Minister, Dana G. Munro, formerly chief of the State Department's Latin-American division, arrived Sunday in the capital of Haiti.

The occupation treaty expires in 1935.

 ceed Charles J. Daly, Retiring in January.

Bernard F. Dickmann, president and treasurer of the Joseph F.
 Dickmann Real Estate Co., was elected president of the St. Louis
 Real Estate Exchange yesterday.
 He will succeed Charles J. Daly, of Daly & McCabe, who will retire from the office in January, after two successive one-year terms.

Six members of the board of directors of the Exchange, elected unanimously as was Dickmann, are:
 Chester A. Dougherty and William
 A. Federer, of firms bearing their names; Charles Rippin, of the Hemmelmann-Spachler Real Estate
 Co.; Eugene D. Ruth, of the Francis-Perry-Ruth Realty Co.; Carl G.
 Stifel, of the John H. Gundlach
 Real Estate Co.; and Philip H.
 Zepp, real estate officer of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co.

Dickmann entered the real estate business at the age of 18, in the office of his father, the late Joseph F. Dickmann, who was three times
 Sheriff of St. Louis. Living at 3446
 Halliday avenue, he has been active in the development of South St. Louis, and constructed the Dick-mann building at Grand boulevard and Arsenal street. He has served as secretary and member of the board of directors of the Exchange.
 He is 41 years old.

Among his other activities have been offices in Charles Soderman Post of the American Legion, which he helped to organize, and Ellis Lodge No. 9. He is present treasurer of the Democratic State Committee and was chairman of the Citizens' Committee which selected candidates and conducted the recent campaign of the party in the city.

WHEN FOOD DOES NOT DIGEST Sweeten the Stomach instantly

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs.
 They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Pleats Feature The New Gowns

Paris Designers Make Varied Use of Them
—Jeweled Hats Are Becoming Popular.

VARIATIONS on the theme of elegance keep the current evening mode interesting. It's a black and white season—in which many of the best dresses are in bright colors or pale tints. Greens, especially the yellow greens, are increasingly important. Pleating, often running from décolletage to hem, now competes with back drapery for attention. Satins, low and high luster, are playing their part in night life in spite of the great vogue of velvets, laces and lames. Evening hats of a very formal type are being successfully featured. They provide yet another way of adding the jewel touch that's so popular.

Suzanne Talbot is one of those who sponsor the all-pleated gown. She combines stitched and free pleating in a charming heel-length frock of yellow-green chiffon. The bodice, which has a square décolletage, and the top section of the skirt are composed of vertical rows of stitched pleats. The bodice sides continued to make the fairly wide shoulder straps. The three skirt tiers are free pleats. Being of an unusually heavy quality, the chiffon holds the free pleats well, but since the fabric is so soft, the tiers do not flare. A rhinestone buckle centering the self-belt gives the essential touch of sparkle.

Another pleated gown of pale turquoise crepe, keeps its bodice pleats in place without stitching. A row of applied flowers circling the bodice holds them at the top, and a plain crepe band, not a separate belt but part of the dress, keeps them in place at the bottom. The skirt is pleated full length, stitched at the center from the waistline to the hem.

Patou's chateau-style crepe-back satin frock makes a very different use of pleats. They appear only on the skirt, and are concentrated there at the front and back. Two sets of pleats face each other at the center front, beginning at the empire waistline. The bodice is unusual. Its plain slashed front, the center from the waistline to the hem, and that curves around the high décolletage, the clash revealing a low-cut under bodice of chateau-style satin.

The sides of the bodice curve around to the back in two low points, meeting the two wide satin shoulder straps.

The shoulder strap lines are continued below the skirt into the same pleated arrangement that marks the skirt front. The skirt is a braid of chateau-style satin, clasped by a cloudy crystal and rhinestone circle flanked by smaller circles.

The little evening hat recommended for wear with this gown is a hit by courtesy. It's a bit of net, matching the hair in color, that has a silver cloth bandeau headed in a checky knit pattern with rhinestones and silver beads. Long silver and rhinestone carnelian make effective accompaniments, provided one's eyes are lovely and bright enough to hold their own against the competing sparkle.

Jeweled evening hats are among those admirable accessories which are good as well as clever. They're good at keeping the coiffure in a state of perfection in the face of windy winds and clever about the flattering way they do it. One little net hat has a stiffened brim glittering with rhinestones that turns back from the forehead in a charming line and is held above the left eyebrow by a flat bow effect carried out in rhinestones. Another hat, medieval in inspiration, had shirred white velvet decorated with rhinestones and seed pearls.

Norman Hartnell has done an evening dress straight out of fairy tales. It's a glamorous affair of shimmering pale rose net and lace and delicate sequins. A coach and four motif to come with it. The molded bodice, pale rose net over pale rose lace patterned in small squares, has a row of colored sequins shimmering along its dipping décolletage and making a broad grille around the waist. The skirt, molded to the knees, bells out in a cloud of rose net down to the floor.

A lovely jacket covered with sequins and edged with rose net accompanies the frock, the long straight jacket sleeves ending in a scalloped flare at the wrist. A sequin bonnet framing the face prettily may be had to match the jacket, and is very much in keeping with the extravaganza mood of the costume.

Another Norman Hartnell of an extremely restrained way in a deep evening dress of black crepe, dotted at wide intervals with applied circles of gold alternating with turquoise appliques. If there's restraint about decoration, there's little about line, for this frock has no bodice in back, making it all on two fragile-looking crepe shoulder straps running across a perfectly bare expanse to the waist.

Unusual on several counts is a black low-luster satin Paquin gown with shirred insets of dark red velvet catching its draperies.

A PIECE —OF— HER MIND

By ELSIE MCCORMICK

A NUMBER of remarks have been called forth by some recent statements in this little rose garden, especially those dealing with ways of recognizing unhappy wives.

"Many marriages being unhappy, it becomes suspicious for a wife to go about with the hairpencil and singing mating songs in public," writes Jonathan Schneider. Suspicious to whom? Not to happily married people.

"I am acquainted with a very happy married couple, so known to all their intimates, who vie with each other in extolling the other's virtues. The male member of the duo always sings of his wife's love and her happiness, and compares her devotion to him with that of Mary for Dizzy and Elizabeth for Robert Browning, etc., etc."

"Notwithstanding the fact that the wife displays much anxiety about her husband and worries a good deal because he does not come home at the time she expects him, it is known, nevertheless, that she loves him with ardor and devotion."

Despite Mr. Schneider's eloquence I am by no means convinced. To me, the married couples who warble much in public about their happiness remain under a deep veil of suspicion.

"The player queen in 'Hamlet,' they protest too much; one begins to wonder just why so much emphasis is necessary and what is being concealed under all these gratuitous garlands. Women, whose intuitions are usually sound in regard to other people's domestic lives, usually experience a distinct twinge of skepticism in the presence of too much marital poetry."

Really happily married people, I believe, do not need to make a few public pronouncements. They have, however, a warm and friendly glow which heartens people around them and can be fairly easily distinguished from its more reserved counterpart.

Incidentally, a man who, according to Mr. Schneider's description, is always singing of his wife's love and comparing her devotion to that of Mary for the noted Dizzy must be a genuine fellow.

The "etc., etc." in the correspondent's letter might be crudely described as the tip-off. At that point guests begin tiptoeing out into the garden to see how the goldfish are getting along.

There has also been some comment on the statement of Dr. Fritz Wittels to the effect that a lady who habitually toys with her wedding ring is unconsciously wishing that her marriage would end.

"These psychological gentlemen will find depths below depths in everything we women do," writes Katherine Burton.

One of the best ways to gauge whether you are getting more emotional or vice versa is the ease or difficulty with which your wedding ring slips from your finger.

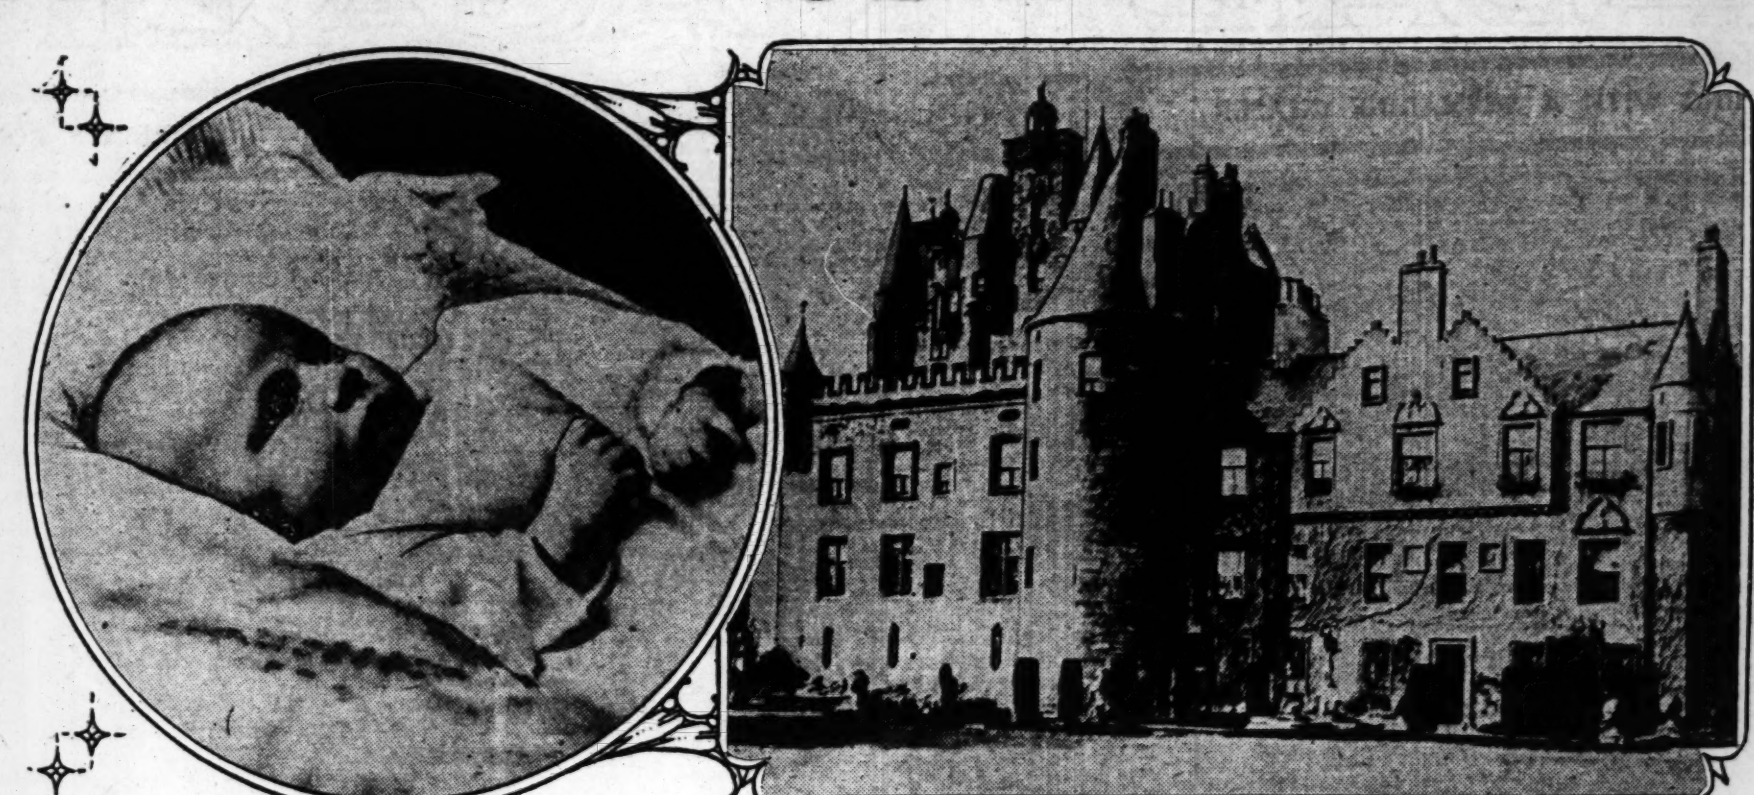

"You are certainly right, though, about ideal husbands. I once thought that Elsie Dinsmore's father was a grand prospect."

Sometimes these psychological interpretations come so near home that they make me nervous. A famous critic told me the other day that even sneezing is now generally supposed to be stimulated by amorous intercourse.

He added that whenever he sneezes very much at a party his wife always listens attentively and then tries to discover the source of his inspiration.

Life for my fever addicts is getting less worth living every day.

MYSTERIES OF GLAMIS CASTLE

Princess Margaret Rose, born at Glamis Castle. She is fourth in line of succession to the British throne.

Historic Glamis Castle, the ancestral home of the Dukes of York, who returned there to give birth to her daughter.

In Macbeth's Grim Feudal Fortress, Haunted With Ancient Memories of Murder, the New-Born Royal Princess Finds Many Old Ghosts to Charm Away.

By PADRAIC KING

THERE is probably nowhere in the world a castle which has a story so crowded with mystery, tragedy and terror as that of Glamis, where a few months ago there was born to the Duchess of York a daughter, who, as the fourth in direct line of succession to the British throne, may some day be acclaimed Queen of England.

With its frowning battlements, and its grim walls built as if for all time, shut out from the world the ancient ruins of Glamis Castle, the Forfarshire seat of the Earls of Strathmore, stands forth as a ghastly reminder of terrible deeds of ruthless Scottish chieftains, of awesome secrets guarded in its deep dungeons, and of spectral figures stalking through its corridors and chambers.

For a thousand years this stronghold of the Lyons—the ancestral home of the Dukes of York, who was Lady Elizabeth Bowes Lyon—has been the chosen home of romance; for the old keep, sometimes referred to as the "Ancestral Hall," has witnessed the defiance to the centuries. It was there long before the Conqueror set foot on British shores.

If you pass into the crypt, which is now the Great Hall, through the heavily grated gate once the portcullis, there is to be seen at the end of a dark corridor the very room in which Macbeth murdered King Duncan in 1040. The sword and shield of the historical slayer are to be seen today in the armory. And just above the apartment where Duncan met his end is the chamber in which Malcolm II drew his last breath after receiving his mortal wound on Hunter's Hill close by.

GLAMIS was a royal castle long before it had for lord Sir John Lyon, who took his wife Joan, daughter of Robert II, and founded a family which was to give his stronghold a new and long lease of life. Sir John himself fell to a duelist's sword in 1383.

The life of the sixteenth-century Glamis was convulsed by the flames of the Reformation, and the castle was burned at the stake at Castle Hill, Edinburgh, on the very day on which her second husband was found dead at the foot of the Castle Rock, where he had been hanged by a former rival for the hand of Lady Glamis.

The eighth lord of Glamis, the grandson of the first Lyon earl was slain at Sheriffmuir, while his brother Charles was done to death "in a scuffle." So runs the early history of this fighting Scottish clan, through a long list of tragedies to that of Lord Strathmore, who was run through the body by James Carnegie in a brawl, and whose widow, the "beautiful countess," died in Paris a few years after a disastrous marriage with her second husband.

During one of the constant feuds between the Lindsays and the Ogilvies, so the story runs, a number of the latter clan, holly pursued by their enemies, fled to Glamis Castle and begged for shelter. The lord of the day admitted them, "but on the plea of hiding them secured them in a large out-of-the-way chamber, and there left them to starve. Their bones lie there to this day, according to coming tradition, their bodies never having been removed."

FROM that day, it is said, this "chamber of horrors" has always been kept closed. Only one of all the later lords has ever dared to look into it. But such was the sight that met his eyes that he recoiled in horror and fled, half fainting and weeping, to his room.

Life for my fever addicts is getting less worth living every day.

Such is one of many explanations of the famous secret chamber of Glamis, around which more speculation has waged than round any other room in the world.

Where is this secret chamber, and what horror does it hold? Many efforts have been made by the curious to discover its exact location, but all have failed. Once a party of guests sought to discover its locality by hanging a towel out of a window accessible from the inside. But there was no window to be seen from the outside.

that did not flaunt its towel, thus proving that the room of mystery had no access to the outer air. It is recorded that a stonemason, once working on the castle roof, caught a glimpse of the chamber, and was discovered hours later in a dead faint.

What he saw, no other man knows, for legend has it that he was immediately packed off abroad with a large sum of money in his pocket, carrying his secret with him.

ANOTHER story tells that once, at a very remote period, a vampire was born to the house of Lyon, and was confined in this mysterious apartment. But however ridiculous these supernatural legends may appear, the existence of a secret chamber is not a popular delusion. There is such a chamber at Glamis Castle and the current tale that its location can only be known at the same time as the three living persons—the Earl of Strathmore, the heir apparent, and the factor—are absolutely correct. When the present Earl of Strathmore came of age in 1876 he was made partaker of the secret by his father and the then factor, Mr. Ralston. It was also disclosed to Lord Glamis when he came of age in 1905.

A score of stories have been woven around this room. All have their champions, but the secret remains as jealously guarded as ever. Some pin their faith to the following story of a long-gone lord of the castle, known as the "Wild Earl of Strathmore," a man with a mania for gambling.

"One dark and stormy night," the legend runs, "the Earl, weary of his forced inactivity, called for a pack of cards and comforted himself with the anticipation of a pleasant game. But not a soul in the castle, from steward to scullion, would take a hand with him, for it was the Lord's day."

"At last the Earl, swearing tremendously, seized a pack of cards and went growing away up the old oak stairs to his chamber, saying he would play with the devil himself sooner than be thwarted in his desire."

"He had not sat long before a knock came at the door, and a deep voice sounded from the corridor asking the Earl if he wanted a partner. 'Yes,' roared the Earl, 'enter in the friend's name, whoever you are.' And, with that entered a tall, dark stranger, wholly wrapped in a cloak, who nodded to the Earl, and took his seat on a vacant chair on the opposite side of the table."

"The stranger proposed a high stake; and in reply the Earl said if he were the loser, and was not able to discharge his debt, he would sign a bond for whatever his guest might choose to ask. Fast and furious became the game, and loud oaths resounded through the chamber and struck terror into the menials covering in the corridor outside."

"An old butler, more daring than the rest, crept to the door and peeped through the keyhole; but in an instant he fell back and rolled on the floor with a yell of agony, his two curious eyes blasted by a sheet of flame."

"The Earl lived five years before he paid his bond; but afterward, on every Sabbath evening, the old chamber was filled with strange noises that echoed through the passages as if the lord and the dark stranger (none other than the Evil One himself) were again wrangling and swearing over the 'Devil's bricks.' And Glamis Castle has its ghostly tenants who 'walk o' nights.'"

Strange tales are told of a tall figure in armor—none other, it is said, than Macbeth himself, who stalks through the corridors at dead of night, and even invades the bedrooms.

On one occasion, according to Glamis chroniclers, a woman and her child were spending a few days at the castle. The child was asleep in an adjoining dressing room and the woman, having gone to bed, lay awake for awhile.

Suddenly a cold blast stole into the room, extinguishing the night-light by her bedside, but not affecting the one in the dressing room beyond, in which the child had its cot. By that light, she saw a tall, mailed figure pass into the dressing room from that in which she was lying. Immediately thereafter there was a shriek from the child in an agony of fear. It described to the mother what it had seen as "a giant, who came and leant over its face."

Her explanation of a disturbed sleep produced a dead silence, and the week-end guest saw with astonishment that the faces of the members of the family were pale. She was asked, as she valued the friendship of all there, never to speak on the subject again. There had been no carpenters at Glamis Castle for many months.

Less fearsome than the mailed warrior who stoops at night over sleeping guests is the White Lady who, it is said, may be seen flitting along the passages, or through the castle grounds. She is supposed to be the Lady Glamis who suffered at the stake for witchcraft nearly four centuries ago.

On another occasion a well known London society woman, a week-end guest at the castle, was awakened by a loud noise of hammering, as if carpenters were erecting a scaffold. When she appeared at the breakfast table and was asked by her host how she had slept, she replied:

Pestilence And Disaster.

PESTILENCE is the companion of disaster. When earthquake, hurricane, flood or conflagration strikes at a community, disease, like a scavenger, follows in the wake.

And those that come to the rescue of the stricken peoples must bring not only supplies to fill the immediate needs of the sufferers, but also, medicines, antiseptics, vaccines and the like.

Disaster disrupts community life. It also disorganizes the machinery for safeguarding the health of the inhabitants. Water mains are broken, sewer lines are disrupted. Garbage remains uncollected. Wastes are strewn about.

The sick and the well are huddled together in makeshift shelters. People are compelled to live in unnatural closeness. And all of this engenders disease.

Typhoid is bound to appear. In every large group of persons there are some typhoid carriers, who, though not sick of the disease, shed typhoid bacilli.

With all the common sanitary precautions forgotten in the super of the disaster, with the water lines and sewer lines disrupted, and with all the crowding resulting, typhoid spreads like wild-fire.

Smallpox, and in certain communities, cholera and typhus, are also bound to flare up. For these diseases thrive on crowding. Contaminated food and water, and the lack of food and rest soon tell on the sufferers, and unless appropriate preventive measures are taken, the ominous head of pestilence is soon above the ruins.

And that is why, with food, tents, clothing and other emergency supplies, the rescuers also bring typhoid vaccine, smallpox vaccine, tetanus antitoxin and such other of the products of modern science as are necessary to combat the diseases that follow disaster.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN.

VIRGINIA did not find it easy when tea was over, to leave Michael alone with Rickey. She wanted to stay, but Rickey was impatient.

"Jenny's playing Lady Bountiful," was his tactful hint soon after Michael's arrival. "She is taking care of a little chap on the floor. He is ill and his mother goes out to work. He simply loves Jenny."

Who wouldn't adore her? Michael asked himself. She wore those gown with its touches of gold, and there was a knot of the ivory beaded chain pinned where they lay against the ivory throat. She had said to him the night before, "I'll have to be the jar of Rickey will know you've been here. But I needn't tell the flower. He'll think they came from Tony."

Home Still Aim of Modern Girl

Husband and Children Are First Interests, Despite Liberal Views on Smoking, Drinking and Divorce, Survey Reveals.

BY DR. PHYLLIS BLANCHARD.

Illustrations By Marguerite Martyn.

MODERN young women have been described as cynical about marriage, unwilling to sacrifice the excitement of casual flirtations for the responsibilities that fall upon a wife and mother, and interested in work chiefly because it offers an escape from the restraints of parental control and the ego. But psychological studies of the modern girl, based upon questionnaire returns, clinical case studies and letters to newspaper advice columns, paint a very different picture of youthful attitudes.

The replies to questionnaires which we addressed to more than 250 college and working girls, the majority of whom are between the ages of 18 and 23, indicate that below the surface sophistication of modern youth there exist rather thoughtful and serious attitudes toward life. The general trend of their thinking shows a realistic self-observation and sizing up of the world and what it has to offer. Questioned as to "what things would be expected to give greatest satisfaction in life, 60 per cent of the girls voted for home, husband and children; 17 per cent registered a first choice for creative work and the others were divided between wealth and leisure and the opportunity to aid in solving social problems.

Although 40 per cent of the girls placed other interests above those of family life, they did not, for the most part, think of foregoing marriage. Only 13 per cent expressed any willingness to give up the prospect of marriage in order to devote themselves exclusively to a career, while 38 per cent considered a combination of marriage and work the ideal situation.

ACCORDING to these figures, marriage is still the goal of the modern young woman, but there is no suggestion of a wish to revert to the old-fashioned idea that a woman's place is in the home. The girls want to work before marriage because they believe that this will add to their personal happiness and because economic independence will enable them to select a husband for reasons of love and comradeship and mutual interests, without having to cast too calculating an eye upon his bank book. They claim the privilege of continuing to work after marriage both for the satisfaction of self-expression through the job and for the very practical consideration that they can hope to marry earlier if they are in a position to contribute to the joint income.

Work is not placed before children, for only 7 per cent of the girls desire childless homes. The others all wish to have children—but not more than can be well cared for. Most of them would limit the number of children to two or three, so that there will be ample means to provide for their needs. They expect to give undivided care to their children during the early years, but look favorably upon the plan of resuming duties outside the home as the children grow older. They recognize the necessity for a life of their own, an insular middle age against the loneliness that beset mothers of many generations when their children broke away from them to establish separate lives.

It might seem that some of their attitudes stamp the group of girls who answered the questionnaires as much more conservative than the average. But their manners are decidedly in the modern mood. Smoking is matter-of-factly regarded by 80 per cent and 56 per cent admitted drinking. The feeling about divorce was also very liberal, for 92 per cent believed that this should be the solution for unhappy marriages, and 54 per cent approved of divorce even if there should be children. They did not look upon marriage as an endurance test, but as an attempt to achieve more happiness than accrues to the single individual, and saw no point to continuing in it if it proved an unsuccessful experiment.

If we turn from the conscious formulation of opinion, which is all that can be obtained through questionnaires, to case study material we find that in spite of their clear-thinking modern girls are confronted with many emotional problems. These range all the way from anxiety over questions of educational and vocational preparation to those of ethics and social adjustment. Family conflicts are prominent among unmarried girls who are still living at home, partly because parents have not accepted modern manners so readily as their daughters.

IN the questionnaire returns only 23 per cent of the girls tolerated smoking, and only 21 per cent thought drinking permissible. In clinical contacts these differences stand out even more clearly, disagreements between parents and daughters arising not only over smoking and drinking but also over disagreements as to what constitutes too late hours, the use of rouge and lipstick, and the age at which boys may be entertained or used as escorts to parties.

The gap between the thinking of the older and younger people on these subjects causes parents to accuse their daughters of disobedience and misbehavior while the latter retort that the former are old-fashioned and have no understanding of youth. There is thus a real need of helping parents and children to a more sympathetic insight into each other's point of view and to compromise on some code of conduct which will be reasonably acceptable to both.

On the whole, it appears as if feminine freedom has now been long enough with us so that it is no longer a heady wine to confuse girls. They are less inclined to exploit it in rash adventure, and more eager to use it to obtain lasting values. They have seen that certain types of behavior do not pay in the long run, and they believe that enduring satisfactions can best be obtained through permanent relationships in love and marriage, plus opportunities for work and recreation outside the home which will insure broader interests and self development. If modern young women can carry out these ideas, the next generation of mothers may be more in sympathy with their daughters, and less energy may be wasted in conflicts between parents and children.

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

Curling Smoke.

THE Little Black Clock led John and Peggy to the roof of a house where he wanted them to meet another friend of his.

And there they saw smoke curling out of a chimney. "Hello, Curly," said the Little Black Clock.

"Hello," answered the Curling Smoke, as it came out of the chimney, and no sooner had the first "hello" been said than more and more Curling Smoke came following along, out of the chimney, and these kept on saying, "Hello," "Hello," "Hello."

"This is the Curling Smoke family," said the Little Black Clock. "They're all so fond of curling their way out of chimneys up in the air."

"Sometimes they make their homes in chimneys and sometimes in the engines of trains."

"But they love to curl and they love to play Follow the Leader."

"We play that sometimes," said John.

"Then you know the game," said the Little Black Clock.

"That's what the Curling Smoke family likes to do, and you'll watch them now as they're playing."

John and Peggy watched and more and more Curling Smoke kept coming out of the chimney, twisting around a little and then going up into the air.

"When they set up a little distance they just like to lose themselves in the air," the Little Black Clock said.

As the Curling Smoke family kept coming out of the chimney they spoke to John and Peggy.

After a little while the Little Black Clock took the children down from the roof and they watched the Curling Smoke family coming from the engine of a puffing train down by the railway station to which he took them.

Yes, they were playing Follow the Leader, too!

Home Painting Hints

Use nickel enamel for your gas stove. Apply the enamel when stove is cold and do not light it until thoroughly dry. You can get the nickel enamel in the various colors. One housewife had perfect success in enameling her black gas range a light gray.

One woman whose tan kitchen shades became soiled painted them orange, using flat paint. Then she traced a stencil design border and outlined it with black paint. To do this the shade must hang full length and one side be thoroughly dry before the other is painted. Women prefer the quick drying enamel because it is easier to apply than lacquer and it does not chip.

Missouri Girl Made Happy

MANY times a child has everything to make her happy and still is dissatisfied. This may not be the youngster's fault. Often it is due to a condition easily corrected.

"Take the experience of Mrs. H. G. Witte, 8845 Lawn Ave., St. Louis. She was fretful, feverish, suffered a lot from colds. She was constipated.

"We saw California Fig Syrup advertised and got some. It relieved her trouble promptly; made her bright and happy again. We have used it for three years."

Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love it. Doctors recommend it to relieve constipation, feverishness, fretfulness, headaches; to open the bowels in colds or children's ailments. Appetite is increased by the use of California Fig Syrup; breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are aided; weak bowels and stomach are strengthened. For your protection, the genuine always bears the name California.

Spaghetti Supreme
Cook one package of spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender. Drain well. Chop one-quarter pound of bacon and one onion and fry together slowly until bacon is nice and crisp. Place spaghetti in the bottom of buttered casserole, then add a layer of sharp cheddar, the bacon and onion, a little tomato puree, salt and pepper. Continue the layers until the dish is full. Add a final layer of cheese and buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven for a half hour.

WHEN THE BABY GOES RIDING

IF YOU have ever watched the go-carts, you, probably, have noticed the cramped and uncomfortable position of some of the babies occupying these carts. This should be different.
The folding carts, especially, are inadequate. They fill the bill for the purpose for which they are intended—going on cars, trains, etc.—but for baby's daily airing or to ride long distances they are harmful.
When selecting a go-cart, make sure it is large enough for the baby, in any position, and the necessary blankets and pillows. It should have good springs, stand squarely on four wheels and be, at least, two feet high. Many go-carts are so low that only the lower and colder air currents reach the child being wheeled and the germladen dust from the ground blows directly into the face of the child. The possible consequences are obvious.
The folding go-carts have no hood, so there is no shelter against cold nor any protection against heat or direct sunlight striking the eyes. This vehicle is a convenience if you live in an apartment, therefore quite popular, but the baby's comfort and well-being should be the first consideration in selecting a pleasure vehicle for the child.
Beads Worn in Panels
MRS. DAVID KINCHELOE, wife of the newly appointed judge of the New York port of customs, is wearing an evening dress which has a beaded tunic over green satin. The beads, of pink and green, are arranged in the form of panels. The long flared skirt has an uneven hemline.
Sales of women's rayon underwear increased five times as much as silk in 1929.

Gloves Do Not Need To Be Plain, Now

PLAIN gloves are no longer an absolute rule in Paris. Some of the fashionable dressmakers' most fastidious customers are now ordering saunter gloves with cuffs made of the material of dress or coat.
Fancy jersey tweeds and diagonal stripe jerseys are particularly effective set into the cuffs of white kid gloves.
White pull-on gloves with flared tops are frequently ornamented with punch work. They are especially effective on black costumes.

THE HAT RIBBON
BOW...THE DANDIES IN THE HISTORIC COURTS OF ENGLAND AND FRANCE WORE VELVET HATS WITH MAJESTIC PLUMES. . . . THESE WERE ALWAYS WORN ON THE LEFT SIDE TO BE AWAY FROM THE EYES WHEN THE RIGHT SIDE OF THE BODY WAS ADVANCED IN DUELING. . . . THE BOW ON MODERN MEN'S HATS IS A SURVIVAL OF THE JEWELLED BUCKLE THAT HELD THE PLUME.
LION'S HEAD FOUNTAINS. . .
THE EGYPTIANS USED THE LION'S HEAD FOR THEIR FOUNTAINS, BECAUSE THE NILE OVERFLOWS EVERY YEAR WHEN THE SUN IS IN LEO. THE GREEKS AND ROMANS BORROWED THE IDEA AND HANDED IT DOWN TO US. . .
MAD AS A HATTER. . . IS A CORRUPTION OF "MAD AS AN ADDER". . . THE SAXON WORD FOR "ADDER" IS "NAEDRE". THE SLURRING OF THE EXPRESSION "MAD AS AN NAEDRE" GAVE US OUR VERSION.
